RECEIVER REPORTS UBERO COMPANY PAID BORGES AND WIFE THOUSANDS FOR NOTHING

MYSTERY IN STOCK ROBBERY

Colonel Comstock's Story of $120,000 Theft Is Being Investigated.

DETECTIVE IS AT WORK

The remarkable story told by Colonel Henry W. Comstock as to how he was mysteriously robbed of more than $120,000 worth of negotiable securities on the Fall River steamer, Puritan, on his way from New York, Sunday night, was retold today by the old miner for the benefit of Detective James Vallaily of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad who came to this city to look into the matter.

Colonel Comstock said that he had the bonds in a large leather pocket book, and that after he went to his stateroom on the steamer the maid called to help him, as he is a cripple. He said that he gave the maid the pocket book, remarking that it contained valuable papers, and told her to put it under his pillow. She did so, he says. He intended to remain awake all night, but finally lay down and fell asleep. When he awoke the pocket book and bonds were gone.

Son Doubts Robbery.

A dispatch from Denver, where the Colonel is well known, says that the Colonel's son, Charles W. Comstock, does not believe his father could have had any such sum with him. He is not considered wealthy in Denver.

"I may know to-day what will be done," said Colonel Comstock to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "Twice I talked by telephone with the thief or his agent. He said he was in New York, but I suspect that he was nearer, perhaps in Rhode Island.

"Will You Give $1,000?"

"I was about to retire when the second telephone call came last night. 'Have you decided to recover the securities and how much are you willing to pay?' was asked.

"'How much do you want?'

"'Will you give $1,000 for the safe return of the securities?'

"'Perhaps so.'

"I knew," interjected Colonel Comstock, "that it would cost me more than $1,000 to obtain a reissue of the securities and anyway was glad to temporize.

"It is not true that I guaranteed protection to the thief, or that I even promised not to prosecute.

"I told the lawyer, or whoever he might be, that I would have further communication with him in about eighteen hours. In the meantime, I have instructed my New York attorneys to investigate to the fullest the cost of reissue of the necessary bonds, and if I find that it can be safely and cheaply done I shall allow the thief to retain his loot.

Securities Not All Taken.

"Had the thief been more persistent he might have obtained a larger amount of securities. There was another bundle in my valise that was not touched.

"The reason that I travelled alone with the valuable packages is, first, that my secretary was busy with details of business in Boston, and secondly, that in my hurry from New York to Poughkeepsie and then to Boston I had no opportunity of transmitting the papers through the usual channels, and so was compelled to carry them because they must be delivered in Boston at once, according to a deal just made by me.

"I have received letters of congratulation that I escaped personal injury. I say to you that if I had awakened to find that thief in my stateroom I should have taken all chances, crippled though I am, and would have given him a tussle. Perhaps it is fortunate that I did not awaken because he must have been a dangerous man to enter at my window and commit the robbery.

"About twelve years ago an effort was made to rob me. I was dogged for days, but escaped. I had something of the same feeling on my steamboat trip the other night after seeing an evil-faced man furtively watching me. I caught his eye several times and saw him near me whenever I was out of my stateroom."

Detectives Are Busy.

James Vallaily, chief of the detective force of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and a former detective sergeant of New York, was in conference with Chief Watts to-day on the loss of the Comstock securities. As the theft was on a Fall River boat it comes within the jurisdiction of New Haven's force. Mr. Comstock has been asked to join in another conference with the detectives.

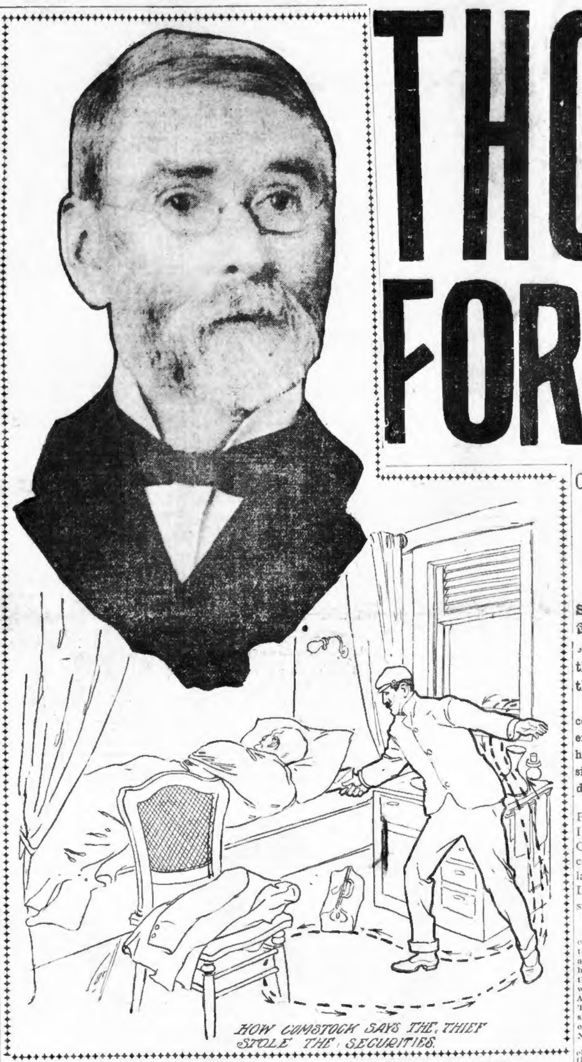
Colonel Comstock, who is a cousin of George Comstock, the discoverer of the famous Comstock lode, is a veteran practical miner of the West. Up to eight years ago, when his health began to fail, he had been for some time in Colorado engaged in mining. Since then he has made his home in this city, where he is well known. For six months he has been consummating a deal whereby he was to sell a mine he owns in Colorado, and it was for the purpose of completing the deal that he went to New York last week.

$50,000 FOR SWARTHMORE.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Dr. Joseph Swain, president of Swarthmore College, announces that Morris L. Clothier of this city, a member of the class of 1890, has given $50,000 to endow a professorship in physics. This gift is a part of the $300,000 endowment undertaken three years ago, and of which only $6,200 is yet to be obtained.

NAMES NEW DEPUTY.

ROCKLAND, Me., June 13.—Warden Norton of the State prison has appointed Charles A. Pierce of Thomaston deputy warden in place of Arthur C. Wyman.



HOW COMSTOCK SAYS THE THIEF STOLE THE SECURITIES.

H. W. COMSTOCK AND HOW HE SAYS HE WAS ROBBED.

Charges Affairs of Rubber Company Were Badly Mismanaged and Claims Big Amounts Were Paid as Commissions That Were Not Earned.

The first report of Hugh W. Ogden and Jeremiah Smith, receivers for the Ubero Plantation Company, was filed to-day with the clerk of the United States Court. It says the company has been grossly mismanaged, that the assets are very small in proportion to liabilities, and that the officials have been lax in their work.

The receivers ask the court for leave to employ counsel to recover "assets from officers of the company who have wrongfully expended them." The report shows that Ferdinand E. Borges and his wife, Lillian Borges, received thousands of dollars in commissions for the sale of the stock of the company, yet no work was ever done upon it.

It is also shown that the La Puerta Plantation Company of Indiana, which Borges and W. B. Owen formed, was used as a receptacle for the Ubero's moneys, large sums having been paid the La Puerta Company for lands of small value.

EACH HAD ONE SHARE.

In their report the receivers say: "After considerable difficulty in obtaining information, the examination of books and reports and papers, the receivers of the company have been able to get at the main points of the company's affairs. The Ubero Company was organized under the laws of Maine in August, 1900, with a capital of $1,000,050. The capital stock was issued in 6,667 shares, with a par value of $150 each. The officers were Ferdinand E. Borges, Frank N. Clark and Calvin P. Sampson.

"These men each had one share. After electing themselves a board of directors, they voted to pay the La Puerta Plantation Company of Indiana $450,000 for 3,000 acres of land in Mexico, for which $10,000 would have been a high price. Three hundred thousand was to have been paid to this La Puerta Plantation Company for the work of cultivating, which could have been done for less than half that amount.

SALARIES FOR BORGES.

"On November 12, 1900, a vote of the directors gave to Ferdinand and Lillian Borges a salary of $150 a month and 5 per cent. commission on all sales of stock.

"Having organized the corporation and voted contracts to pay away the greater part of the stock subscribed, the promoters set about getting prominent names to carry weight in the board of directors.

"The total amount received by the corporation from the date of its incorporation to April 1, 1905, was $571,037.02, of which $16,091.04 was refunded, leaving the net receipts $554,945.98. The books showed no other receipts.

"The expenditures of the company on record are: Paid to the La Puerta Plantation Company under development contract, $145,993.05; paid to La Puerta Company and charged to account, $134,433.61; paid to Miller and Ansell for work on plantation and charged to La Puerta Plantation Company, $16,000; paid for commissions on sale of stock, $98,717.57; paid for other running expenses, about $115,000.

ACCOUNTING REFUSED.

"The receivers have asked an accounting from the La Puerta Plantation Company of Indiana, which has been refused. The only way to secure such an accounting will be through recourse to the courts.

In their report the receivers say the total amount expended upon the property in Mexico by the La Puerta Company does not exceed $30,000. It is not possible as yet to ascertain the exact amount received by the La Puerta Company, but about $70,000 was returned by this company to the Ubero, with the statement that it had been earned through the sale of spices. That $70,000 was used to pay dividends. Reports show that the La Puerta Company paid at least forty-five per cent. dividends.

Amounts paid as commission for the sale of stock of the Ubero company include $20,209.16 to Ferdinand E. and Lillian Borges. Other items are $48,000 in salaries, $38,000 for printing and advertising and $14,000 for office expenses. The present condition of the company is:

90-CENT GAS NOW ASSURED

Trust Accepts Act and Consolidated Company Will Soon Begin Business.

CAPITAL OF $15,000,000

The gas consolidation act passed by the last Legislature has been accepted by the Gas Trust. This means that Boston Consolidated Gas Company will commence business in the near future, and that 90-cent gas is assured for Boston.

James L. Richards, president of the eight Boston gas companies which are to be included in the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, notified the Massachusetts Gas & Electric Light Commission to-day that the directors have voted to accept the terms of the special Legislative act.

The acceptance by the Gas Trust of the terms of the new gas bill was generally anticipated, but was necessary before it could be legally certain that the gas business in Boston was hereafter to be conducted along lines of reasonable fairness to the public.

Instead of about $26,000,000 of capital, the Boston Consolidated Gas Company will have only about $15,000,000, and out of this must pay the $6,000,000 of debts of the constituent companies. This result was obtained only after a long and strenuous struggle, in which the BOSTON AMERICAN took the lead.

NINTH ARREST MADE IN ALLEGED FRAUD CASES

Nine arrests in connection with alleged illegal registration, and more to come, have stirred up the Democrats of Cambridge. They charge that the arrests are at the instigation of the non-partisan people and that when the cases are brought to trial there will be no evidence to substantiate the charges.

The ninth arrest was made to-day when James P. Crowley, a painter who lives at No. 67 More street, Cambridge, came to the East Cambridge jail and gave himself up. He had learned that there was a warrant out for him.

Threats are made that the Democrats will be able to turn around and present some evident to the next Grand Jury which will result in indictments against members of the other party.

Of the nine men arrested three have appeared before the Superior Court and been held in $1,000 for trial, with the exception of John J. Morris, against whom there were three counts, and whose bail was fixed at $1,400.

Charged to Politics.

It is generally understood in Cambridge that the present indictments and arrests grew out of the contest which was waged at the last election between former Mayor John H. H. McNamee and Mayor Augustine J. Daly. Besides the men now awaiting trial there are several others whose cases were taken from the jury because one of the jurors had been approached. It was while gathering evidence against the men first arrested, it is said, that the police discovered what they claim was evidence against the last arrested and which was presented to the Grand Jury.

Lawyer Daniel H. Coakley, who is counsel for James A. Montgomery, superintendent of parks, and John Keane, two of the first men arrested, says that it is preposterous that his clients should have been taken. He says that Mr. Montgomery simply testified before the registrars that to the best of his knowledge and belief a man had his residence on the 1st of May in a house where Mr. Montgomery knew he had resided for ten years.

Offers $75,000 for Bail.

To this statement Mr. Keane added his testimony. It turned out that the man for whom they vouched had been arrested and was not at home on the first day of May. Mr. Coakley maintains that had all the evidence in the case been presented to the Grand Jury in this case that there would have been no indictment.

George F. Moynahan of Monument avenue, Charlestown, has gone bail for the men arrested, and says that he is ready to the extent of $75,000 to furnish bonds for all who may be arrested.

TAFT EXAMINES ASPHALT BOOKS

Finds That Minister Loomis Deposited Equivalent of $5,000 with Company.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Secretary Taft has examined the books of the New York & Bermudez Asphalt Company for the period when Francis B. Loomis was American Minister to Venezuela.

The books showed that Mr. Loomis had deposited with Mr. Bean, then resident agent of the company in Caracas, the equivalent of $5,000. A check for $5,000 paid to Mr. Loomis was also produced.

Both Mr. Bean and Mr. Loomis have testified that this transaction was simply entered into to enable Mr. Loomis, then about to go to the United States, to change his Venezuelan money into American currency without paying an exorbitant rate of interest.

Secretary Taft later decided to temporarily adjourn the investigation and left Washington for the West

DEATH WATCH FOR MARY ROGERS TO-DAY

DOOM NOW SEEMS SETTLED, AND SHE WILL NOT BE ALONE UP TO TIME OF EXECUTION.

Special to the Boston American.

WINDSOR, Vt., June 13.—Mary Rogers will no longer be alone in her room in the State Prison after to-day. Her execution is now but ten days off, and the death watch, unless something occurs to change the present plans, will go on duty to-day or to-night.

A woman, one of the assistants to Matron Durkee, will enter her room and sit with her. Morning, noon and evening she will sit with her. At night she will be relieved and another will sit in the ward, while Mrs. Rogers sleeps in the cell that opens into it.

This posting of the watch will be the first warning the prisoner will have of the fact that her case is now regarded as hopeless. According to the present plans of Superintendent Lovell, Sheriff Peck and Matron Durkee, it will be the last until Attorney Moloney, the prisoner's counsel, comes to break to her the news that she is certainly to die.

Whether Mrs. Rogers will realize that the presence of the women in her room means her impending death, no one can tell. When she was to die in February she was transferred to a death cell and a death watch was posted. Week before last this was not done. She will not be moved to a different cell this time, and it is possible that she may not appreciate the significance of the watchers.

Mr. Moloney told me over the telephone late last night that he should not notify her of the approaching end before some time next week. Not until the last hope is gone will he be the bearer of so terrible a message, and he still has hope.

"It doesn't seem possible that the Governor will have them kill her," he said, "in view of the fact that there is such a sentiment for her to be treated as all the other murderers have been treated during the last thirteen years. I cannot believe it yet."

A telephone conference was held last

MANCHESTER AND NEWPORT ARE FAVORED

Both Russia and Japan Object to Washington on Account of Its Climate.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Either Manchester-by-the-Sea or Newport, it seems likely to-day, will be chosen as the place where the plenipotentiaries of Russia and Japan will meet to arrange terms of peace.

Japan does not favor Paris, and Russia objects to Mukden or Chefoo as meeting places. Both oppose Washington for climatic reasons, though neither objects to the choice of an American watering place.

Of the places under consideration in Europe, it is said Russia might accept The Hague. Geneva is also considered, and it would not be objectionable to Japan.

The place for holding the peace conference and the men to be selected as envoys, now that Russia has given official assurance that she will appoint plenipotentiaries in accordance with President Roosevelt's suggestion, are the chief topics of discussion here to-day.

Russia's assent to the peace plan was given when Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, called by appointment and in the name of Emperor Nicholas formally accepted the President's "offer of good will."

The following official statement regarding the conference was issued at the White House:

"Ambassador Cassini has called to express the Russian government's assent to the President's proposition, and to state that they would appoint plenipotentiaries to meet the plenipotentiaries of Japan to discuss the question of peace. The place of meeting is at present being discussed."

TOKIO REPORTS MORE DEFEATS FOR RUSSIANS

TOKIO, June 13.—It is announced officially at the headquarters of the Japanese army that a detachment of Japanese cavalry succeed in dislodging Russian cavalry in the vincinities of Hsiyingtsu, six miles south of Lioyangwopeng.

Hsipingjing, two miles southwest of Hsiyingtsu, was occupied.

Another force defeated the Russians near Siaochengtsu, 18 miles north of Kangping, and Kaochiawopeng, two miles northeast of Siaocheutsu.

An eminence was occupied north of Siaopitang, two miles east of Kaochiawopeng and 10 miles west of Liaoyangwopeng.

LINEVITCH WIRES CZAR THAT THE WAR SHOULD CONTINUE

PARIS, June 13.—The Temps publishes a telegram which, it asserts, was sent by General Linevitch to the Czar on Saturday. It bears not only the signature of Linevitch, but also those of the army chiefs.

Linevitch states that on hearing the news that negotiations were about to be opened, he assembled a council of war, which unanimously decided for a continuance of the war. He adds:

"The present is not the moment to speak of peace. After the battles of Mukden and Tsushima, the enemy, intoxicated by their successes, will assuredly exact conditions injurious to the honor of our country.

"However, there are no reasons to grant them, for we are not reduced to that extremity. The positions occupied by our troops are excellently fortified.

"Rainy weathtr has prevented me from taking the offensive, but now that the losses at Mukden are comparatively repaired and our armies have been reinforced by new corps from Europe, I feel myself in a position to hold my own successfully against the enemy.

"I hope in the course of the present month to be able to assume the offensive, which will completely change the aspect of affairs.

"I repeat it once more, Your Majesty can have entire confidence in the force and power of our troops, and our position has in no way the critical character which might necessitate the concluding of peace on conditions which would be unfavorable to Russia."

VLADIVOSTOK HEARS OF DEMORALIZATION IN NAVAL BATTLE

VLADIVOSTOK, June 13.—Interviews with naval officers who lived through the battle of the Sea of Japan have developed a startling story of the causes of the Russian disaster, and the complete demoralization which followed the sinking of the flagship Kniaz Souvaroff and the wounding of Admiral Rojestvensky.

Many heroic incidents are given, among them being the fate of Captain Berkh, of the Osliabia, who committed suicide as his ship sank, rather than save himself.

It is explained that not a single officer of the fleet knew the commander-in-chief's plans. The admirals in command of divisions knew no more than the sub-lieutenants, and had to rely entirely on the signals of the flagship. Admiral Nebogatoff, on whom the command devolved, had seen Rojestvensky but once after the juncture of their squadrons, and then only for fifteen minutes.

Stories of extensive target practice in Madagascar, it seems, were false. There practically was no training in gunnery, and the big gun practice was confined to three shots a vessel. Ugly stories are told of the happenings at Madagascar. Some of the crews certainly were untrained in gunnery, and, exhausted by the eight months' voyage under trying moral and physical conditions, were no match for the veteran Japanese, whose marksmanship was wonderful.

The Japanese concentrated their fire on one ship until she was placed out of action, and then on another, thus successively sinking the Osliabia, Alexander III, and Kniaz Souvaroff. Some ships developed deplorable structural defects. The Osliabia sank without having a single hole below the waterline. Heavy seas entered the vessel above the waterline, and the watertight compartments, which were changed several times during the voyage, did not stand the strain, and burst, flooding and heeling the vessel over until she turned turtle.

Lack of homogeneity among the ships made it impossible to manoeuvre in harmony. The Vladimir Monomach, Admiral Oushakoff and Admiral Seniavin had to lag behind, on this account becoming easy victims.

Finally the ammunition was exhausted after the first day's fight. Even the morning of the battle, while the buzzing of the wireless instruments on the Russian ships showed that the Japanese scouts were communicating his dispositions to Admiral Togo, Admiral Rojestvensky continued his careless manoeuvring, and when the Japanese appeared the Russians were caught in an impossible formation, and were attacked on three fronts.

The Russian ships were huddled together, blanketing each others' fire. Only the leaders of the columns could bring their guns to bear, and even those the untrained gunners fired wildly. To render matters worse, the mines and floating torpedoes sown in the paths of the Russian divisions added to the confusion. The Borodino, Admiral Nakhimoff and Navarin fell victims to these obstructions.

There were many heroes among the Russians. Captain Berkh of the Osliabia committed suicide as the ship sank rather than save himself. There were thousands of other heroes whose names the world will never know.

NOTED HORSES ENTERED FOR THE RACES AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

Box Sale Insures Large Attendance of Society at Meet Which Opens To-morrow.

No Steeplechases at New York Tracks This Week, as Most of Horses Are Here.

Three days of great sport are promised at the annual race meeting of the Country Club, which opens in Brookline to-morrow and will be continued Thursday and Saturday. The box subscriptions have assured the success of the affair as a society event, while the high quality of the entries, including the best stables of steeplechasers in the vicinity of Boston and New York, guarantees satisfaction to the many who will be attracted to the meeting by the love of the sport.

This will be the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Country Club. While many will regret the absence of Mr. Chamblet, who has withdrawn from active participation in racing, several of his horses will be seen under the colors of Major Charles Hayden, by whom they have been leased. Major Hayden races under the name of Mr. Major. His horses generally are reported to have been somewhat backward this Spring. Flying Virginian and Dromedary are said to be the best of the lot.

Polo Ponies to Race.

So many of the New York owners of steeplechase stables have made entries at the meeting that while it lasts there will be no steeplechase races on the Metropolitan tracks.

An innovation this year in the races on the flat will be those for polo ponies. The distances will be one-quarter, three-eighths and one-half a mile. These races are the revival of an early custom of the Country Club meetings. A dozen years ago they were extremely popular, and old patrons of the club will recall the pony Bridget that used to beat all comers. The Norfolk, Myopia, Dedham and Rumford polo clubs have made entries and some keen contests are expected.

Among the New York owners who will race at the meeting is Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., who won the Grand Annual last year with Foxhunter. Nat Ray, the premier steeplechase jockey, will ride for Mr. Hitchcock. Ray rode Good and Plenty when he won the Champion at Morris Park. At the Country Club he will ride Hylas, Tom Coglan, Jim Newman and Fox hunter. The best of the lot is conceded to be Hylas. He will be a horse to be reckoned with in any race in which Mr. Hitchcock enters him.

Noted Horses Entered.

Joseph R. Widener of Philadelphia has entered Star and Garter, Caligny, Marcian, Patagonian and Telfarre, who will be ridden by Jockey Donahue.

"Mr. Cotton," a distinguished patron of steeplechasing, has a good string of timber-toppers in Whineray, formerly Pawnbroker, said to be in fine shape, Sunshine After Rain, Jimmy Lane, Gamecock, Knight of Elway and Almansor. The last named won a steeplechase June 8 at Gravesend, defeating Jim Newman.

J. W. Colt has entered Lavatore and Sandhurst. Harry S. Page, one of the best known gentlemen racers, has made a number of entries, including Pious Ivan and Pure Pepper. Ivan Fox has entered Naponset, the gallant son of Meddler, in two events. Charles Pfizer and William C. Hayes, the latter the owner of the old "chaser" Trillion, both have made some entries. Mr. Chestland has entered Balford and Flying Buttress, has been named by M. C. Cavanagh.

George Keene has been entered by Mr. Frothingham, and Grandpa Soulac by William C. Hayes.

Big Events Carded.

Besides the steeplechases there will be the usual number of flat races. Of the latter the polo pony dashes will be the first event on the program each day. The chief events in the way of steeplechasing to-morrow are the Duke's cup and the challenge cup. On Thursday the St. Botolph and the Myopia are carded and on Saturday the star events will be the Country Club annual and the National Hunt cup.

Following is a list of the box holders: No. 1, Robert C. Hooper; No. 2, Oliver Ames; No. 3, Bryce Allan; No. 4 and 5, Larz Anderson; No. 6, Charles Hayden; No. 7, Eugene V. R. Thayer; No. 8, C. G. BOURSE PRICES REFLECT HOPE OF LASTING PEACE

PARIS, June 13.—Russian securities had an unprecedented rise of two points on the Bourse to-day on the strength of the peace negotiations which have been initiated.

Nevertheless uneasiness is felt in official circles, where a doubt is expressed for the first time as to the success of the peace effort.

Private dispatches, which have been received, have conveyed the impression that Japan is merely pretending to desire peace in order to win the approbation of the world, when, as a matter of fact, she does not want the war to end at this time.

Japan, it is said, has determined to insist upon peace terms which she knows Russia cannot accept and in such an event the meeting of plenipotentiaries will be without result.

CHARGED WITH SLASHING GIRL

Raphael Martinese, the young Italian of Lawrence, who is charged with slashing Angelica Sarcione, a beautiful young Italian girl, about the face, disfiguring her for life, and who was arrested in Providence a few hours later, arrived at police headquarters in this city to-day in charge of Providence officers. He will remain here until taken to Lawrence by officers of that city.

Martinese is said to have confessed. It is alleged that he laid in wait for Miss Sarcione, who is a spinner in the Washington mills in Lawrence, and when she left her work to go to dinner sprang upon her, cutting her with a razor.

LAWYER CHARGES THEFT BY TRICKERY

Julius Mehlinger, forty-one years old, of No. 22 Bowdoin street, and Harry A. Hooper, thirty-one, of No. 41 Munroe street, Somerville, have been arrested on the charge of larceny, trickery and device from E. Eugene Gay, a lawyer of No. 63 Court street. Mehlinger is accused of obtaining $115 and Hooper is said to have gotten $205 from the lawyer. Gay played cards with a number of men last Winter and Spring and several arrests followed because of his complaints. Frank Marshall and William Hammond were taken into custody on Saturday last and yesterday Jacob P. Livingston of No. 11 Buifach street gave himself up. He was released under $1,300 bonds. Marshall and Hammond also gave bail.

WANTS MORE MEMBERS.

NAVY LOSES 3 MORE SHIPS AT FORT MONROE

Battleship Texas "Sunk" for the Second Time in War Game.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A long distance telephone message from Fortress Monroe, Va., says that about 3 o'clock this morning the battleship Texas and two other vessels of Admiral Dickens's fleet appeared off that point and were "sunk" by a vigorous fire from the coast artillery.

According to this report Admiral Dickens has divided his fleet, sending his smaller vessels up the Potomac and using his heavier ships against Fortress Monroe. Reports reaching here state that the squadron of smaller vessels is at Blackstone Island, about seventy-five miles down the Potomac, with torpedo boats and destroyers thrown up the river as scouts to a point ten or twelve miles below Forts Hunt and Washington, and just beyond the range of their guns.

SAY EQUITABLE REFORM MUST BE COMPLETE

New England Policy Holders Declare for Fullest Reorganization.

William H. Whitman, of the New England Policy-Holders' Protective Association and one of the heaviest policy holders of the Equitable company, after an absence in New York of several days, declared to a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN today that the association would insist that the reorganization of the company be a complete one.

"What has been done so far," said Mr. Whitman, "is entirely agreeable to the New England association. In a recent meeting the local committee adopted resolutions demanding the resignations of the chief officials who have led in the controversy and they have met with success. Whether the resignations of these officials will be permanent or not I am unable to say.

"The New England committee is satisfied—yes, we are pleased with such men as Grover Cleveland, Judge J. Morgan O'Brien and George W. Westinghouse.

Wait for Report.

"I believe, however, that the initial step only has been taken. What may come next is beyond me to predict. The New England committee is waiting for the report of the New York insurance commissioners. Until then we will not take any action. The next meeting will not be held until that report is received.

"The New England committee will insist that there be a complete reorganization. That reorganization must be right. It must be for the interest of the policy-holders. If partial proceedings are instituted by any official and the New England committee learn of it we will lose no time in letting the company know of our objections.

"Personally I am one of the heaviest policy holders in the Equitable Company. Of course I am doubly interested on that account and I intend to see that no illegal moves are made."

Every detail of the transaction by which the Equitable Society changed masters last Friday is to be laid bare by State Superintendent of Insurance Hendricks, who has begun an entirely new investigation in his office at No. 11 Broadway.

TRIAL OF CHARLESTON.

Orders have been issued by the Navy Department to have the official trial of the huge protected cruiser Charleston off the New England coast June 28. The vessel will probably put into Boston harbor.

$3,000,000 TO NON-RESIDENT CITY EMPLOYES

Alderman Curley Says 25 Per Cent. of Salaries Paid Goes Outside of Boston.

CITY EMPLOYES AT WHOM RESOLVE IS AIMED

Some of the non-resident library employes of the city against whom the aldermanic resolve is aimed:

Horace G. Wadlin of Reading, librarian, salary $5,000.

Otto Fleischer, Cambridge, assistant librarian, salary $3,000.

Adelaide A. Nichols, Melrose, auditor, salary $1,500.

Theodosia E. Macurdy, Watertown, chief, salary $1,500.

Edward B. Hunt, Dedham, chief, salary $2,500.

Frank C. Blaisdell, Newtonville, chief, salary $1,500.

Frank DeW. Washburn, Somerville, first assistant, salary $1,000.

James L. Whitney, Cambridge, chief statistician, in library department, $3,000.

Over $3,000,000, or nearly 25 per cent. of the aggregate of salaries paid to city employes, is received by persons who do not reside in the city of Boston. This assertion was made by Alderman James Curley in a Board of Aldermen discussion on the order offered by Alderman Linehan requiring the enforcement of Section 12, Chapter 3, of the revised ordinances. This section provides that heads of departments shall employ none but residents of the city, and in the case of male employes, none but legal voters.

Aldermen Curley also declared that more than half a million of the amount paid to non-residents is received by teachers in public schools who prefer to reside outside of Boston. The ostensible intention of Alderman Linehan is to prevent the loss to the merchants and others of the city of Boston of the vast sum represented by the salaries of these non-resident city employes which they expend for provisions, rents and other living expenses, it is assumed, in the localities in which they make their homes.

Loss to Boston Trade.

At least a large portion of the total, it is contended, is loss to the trade of the city of Boston in this manner.

Following is the section on which is based the order of Alderman Linehan, which was passed unanimously, requesting Mayor Collins to act:

> "Every officer in charge of a department shall employ, fix the compensation of and may discharge for such cause as he shall deem sufficient, and cause to be recorded in the records of the department, all subordinates in his department, but shall employ none but citizens, and if male voters, legal voters of Boston, in any capacity."

Alderman Curley explained that the board could only request the Mayor to enforce the ordinance, as the corporation counsel had advised that the body had no authority to interfere in the hiring of city employes.

"Treat All Alike."

"If a man is employed in the street or water department, he is required to live in the city," he declared. "There is no reason why this rule should not apply to all employes alike. The non-residents are the ones who clamor for rapid transit that they may leave the city more quickly with their salaries and seek other fields in which to spend them.

Nobody can deny that this $3,000,000 spent outside of the city annually, would, if expended here, lighten the burden of our merchants and help to enrich our city. If the employes now living out of town would apply that preference for country life to the city, it would add materially to the wealth of Dorchester, Jamaica Plain, Roslindale or Brighton.

"The school committee ought to be required to explain why it hires non-residents. There are hundreds of our Boston educated girls and young men who cannot obtain positions as teachers in their native city, being crowded out by these non-residents. Let the library and hospital trustees make similar explanations."

MONT PELEE SHOWS SIGNS OF ERUPTION

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, June 13.—Mont Pelee is again in eruption. Hot mud and cinders have been thrown from its crater and brilliant flashes of flame arise from its summit. Dense clouds of smoke rise 1,000 feet above the mountain, and there is every indication that the volcano is preparing for another death-dealing eruption.

"I WILL NOT INTERFERE; HE IS GOVERNOR," SAYS MRS. BELL TO ELEANOR AMES

GOVERNOR'S WIFE SAYS MARY ROGERS'S LIFE SHOULD PAY FORFEIT

HAS SYMPATHY AS FOR ANY ONE 'WHO IS GUILTY'

Family Avoids Case at Home and Charming Daughter Has Little Interest.

HE IS STILL LIKE ADAMANT

By Eleanor Ames.

Special to the Boston American.

EAST HARDWICK, Vt., June 13.—When Governor Bell drove into East Hardwick after his mail yesterday he found not one single petition for clemency in the case of Mary Rogers. Yet the world knows that the Governor is the only hope of saving her from the gallows.

In Saturday's mail there were two appeals, both from Massachusetts, one from a Hudson woman, the other from a Boston man. Neither was very earnest. They simply asked if something could not be done to save the poor woman at Windsor. The reason for the request seemed to be that public sentiment seemed against the hanging. Both writers made no excuse for the deed and seemed not to doubt Mrs. Rogers's guilt.

Vermont seems strongly apathetic to Mary Rogers's fate. It is more than a week since the Governor has received any appeal from Vermonters. Those which have reached him have been asked not on a personal basis but to satisfy the people who clamor against capital punishment.

Governor Is as Adamant.

I have seen Governor Bell at Belfry, his Walden home. He received me cordially and with smiles, but he was as adamant regarding this famous case.

"I can only repeat what I have many times said," he declared. "I shall not interfere again. The law must take its course. I can't see what more can be done in a legal way to save this poor woman.

"Yet the law is a peculiar thing. Some loophole may yet be discovered which will gain a delay. But I shall do nothing more. I cannot see where there is the slightest hope for Mrs. Rogers."

Mrs. Bell entered the room.

"Can't you do something to change your husband's views about Mrs. Rogers?" I asked. "I am not taking any part in the case," she replied.

"Courts Have Settled Case."

I have talked with many men and women in this part of State. Few of them express any sympathy. It was a fiendish crime, they say. If anyone is to hang for murder, she should hang.

Governor Bell does not use the word hanging. He refers to Mrs. Rogers's death, as the end of the reprieve, on June 23, or in some similar way. When I asked him about the date of the prison investigation, he said he thought it would be delayed until after the twenty-third.

Relative to witnesses at the hanging Governor Bell has expressed himself to Sheriff Peck as being distinctly opposed to a number being admitted. He is willing to have the necessary officials, two doctors, two lawyers and two clergymen. He would limit press representatives to one person outside the State and a few Vermonters.

Few Have Sympathy.

When I asked Mrs. Bell her opinion, I received this reply:

"I have never discussed capital punishment with Governor Bell. All during the discussion at the Legislature the subject was not mentioned between us. I attended the hearings, but never spoke of them to the Governor. Governor Bell has never talked about the case of Mrs. Rogers to any extent in his own family."

"You must feel a sympathy for Mrs. Rogrs."

"Why, yes, the sympathy I would feel for any poor creature who is guilty."

"Yet you believe that she should hang?"

Mrs. Bell hesitated some time before replying. "I think that the courts have settled that subject," she said finally.

Miss Bell Not Interested.

"And you would not try to influence the Governor?"

"Certainly not. The Governor has told you that once he did not believe in capital punishment, and now he does. His views have been changed by many circumstances.

"No, I have never tried to influence him. I do not believe I could, nor would have a right to do so. He is the Governor, not I."

When I asked Miss Jennie Bell, the younger daughter of the family, and a most attractive young woman, what she thought of Mrs. Rogers, she smiled nonchalantly and said:

"I don't know that I feel much interested in the case. I've not thought very much about it."

PERHAM'S FATHER IS DEAD OF GRIEF

BENNINGTON, Vt., June 13.—Emmett B. Perham, father of Leon Perham, the man who tied Marcus Rogers while Mary Rogers, now awaiting death at Windsor prison, chloroformed him, is dead at his home here. Death was caused by a complication of diseases, brought on by grieving over his son's disgrace.

The disgrace that has fallen upon his son told heavily upon Mr. Perham, and although only fifty-seven years of age, he failed rapidly and never was in good health after the conviction of his son for complicity in the murder of Marcus Rogers. At first he refused to believe that his son was guilty of complicity, but the young man's confession forced him to believe his guilt.

Young Perham is now serving a life sentence for his part in the crime. Mr. Perham leaves a widow and several children.

DEATH WATCH NOW FOR MRS. ROGERS

night between the attorneys for the defence, Messrs. Moloney, Senter and Deavitt. It was fruitless, Mr. Moloney said afterward. The three can see no hope of saving the woman's life by legal measures, yet they have not given up yet. Each of them is searching the law for a chance point that may rescue her. They will confer again in a day or two before admitting that their work is finished, and that they cannot hope to secure legal intervention.

Yesterday was a peaceful day for Mrs. Rogers, ignorant as yet of the hopelessness of her case. She has been rising very early of late, and at 5 o'clock in the morning was at her window, looking out into the mist and rain. During the day she read and wrote. In the evening she spent an hour with her Bible. It was 9 o'clock before the light in her window went out, showing that she had gone to bed. After to-night the light will not go out, for the death-watch will be on duty.

SEARCH FOR ESCAPED CONVICT.

Some hitch in these plans may follow the strenuous life that Superintendent Lovell is living these days. Sunday night he was up until two hours after midnight; yesterday he was out betimes, headed south through the country in an automobile, and at a late hour in the evening had not returned, searching for the convict that escaped Saturday from the prison.

With all his efforts trained upon the recapture of the escaped prisoner, he has not devoted as much time as he otherwise would to planning the immediate future of Mrs. Rogers.

Sheriff Peck has taken the attitude that it is not his duty to be the bearer of any news whatever to Mrs. Rogers. He went yesterday to Woodstock, where he is in attendance on his duties at the county courthouse. He does not expect to return to White River before Friday, nor to come to Windsor before the first of next week.

"BELL HAS MADE A MISTAKE."

At the postoffice last evening, when the country folk came in, as is their nightly custom, for their mail, the case of Mary Rogers, and the interview that Eleanor Ames had had with Governor Bell Saturday, were the principal topics of conversation, the escaped prisoner on the hill being the only subject that ranked anywhere near it.

"Charles Bell says the people of Vermont want Mary Rogers hanged, does he," said one man argumentatively. "Well, if he believes that he hasn't had his ear as close to the ground lately, as I always thought he had.

"Maybe there are some folks in the State that want it, but they ain't a majority, not by a long shot. I don't doubt she's a bad egg, and if they'd been hanging all the murderers, I'd say, 'Hang her,' but it ain't right, and it never will be, to send all the men that kill folks to prison for life and let this woman hang. Bell's a pretty wise fellow and he usually keeps pretty close to what the people of this State want, but this time he's made a mistake."

Not a man in the crowd that listened disagreed with him.

BOSTONIAN DIES AT THE WALDORF

Charles A. Campbell, a well-known Boston cigar manufacturer, who lived at the Hotel Somerset, died suddenly at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. He had gone there on a brief business trip. He had complained of failing health for some time.

Mr. Camubell was the head of the firm of Breslin & Campbell, which was organized twenty-one years ago, and did an extensive business. He was born in Boston, was forty-six years old and unmarried. He was one of the best-known members of the B. A. A., and prominent in the Masonic order.

Wallace A. Campbell, his brother, has gone to New York to bring the body here.

BLAMES ENGINEER IN RAILWAY DEATHS

DEDHAM, June 13.—Judge Plympton of the Northern Norfolk District Court filed inquest reports to-day on the deaths of James Shea and Vincenzo Beatrice. He finds that they were in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and that they were killed by being struck by an engine on the Providence Division on May 24. He also finds that the deaths were contributed to by Engineer Eugene P. Scridner, who failed to obey the instructions of the railway company, which require that the engine whistle shall be blown when rounding curves outside of city limits.

24 JEWS SLAIN IN CLASH WITH CZAR'S TROOPS

Reservists Start Fighting by Plundering the Stores of the Hebrews.

WARSAW, June 13.—Martial law has been declared at Brest-Litovisk, where fierce fighting has been in progress between Jews and rioters. The disturbances which started in the Jewish quarter have spread all over the town.

The soldiers in the town have not been able to put down the uprising, and General Ostragradski has been sent from St. Petersburg to take charge of the situation and preserve order.

The trouble which began on Sunday was started by reservists, who arrived there in a famished condition, as they had not been fed on a long railway journey. They at once began a raid on grocery stores owned by Jews. The Jews defended their property and a fight resulted. Christians joined with the reservists in attacking the Jews, and a whole street of Jewish stores was devastated.

In the first clash it is reported that twenty-four Jews were killed and thirty-eight persons, most of them Jews, were wounded. The Jews, however, inflicted some damage on their assailants, a number of whom were wounded.

The fighting continued yesterday. The Jews organized for their own protection and secured arms. When the attack of the rioters was resumed the Jews fired. The soldiers replied with volleys. A miniature pitched battle followed, in which many were killed and wounded on both sides.

Troops sent to quell the outbreak, fired into the masses and temporarily restored order. An investigation following the firing by the regular troops disclosed the fact that most of the men killed by their fire were Jews. After the pitched battle the rioters separated into small bands, and kept up their depredations throughout the town.

It is feared that there will be other conflicts of a serious nature unless General Ostrogradski is able to restore order on his arrival there. At present a panic prevails among the 20,000 inhabitants of the town.

MINSK MASSACRE OF JEWS CONFIRMED BY PRIVATE LETTER

Special Cable to Boston American.

Copyright, 1905, by American-Journal-Examiner.

BERLIN, June 13.—A letter from a German merchant at Minsk, received here, tells of new massacres of Jews in that city which have been kept secret by the Russian government. That the authorities were behind the massacres is shown by the fact that it was soldiers on special furlough who murdered the most Jews.

The authorities admit that twelve men, seven women and three children fell victims to an infuriated mob of dvorniks, istvostshicks and intoxicated soldiers, but these were not one-tenth of the actual victims. More than six hundred wounded are being cared for in private houses in the Jewish quarter, as they feared that they would be poisoned if they went to the hospitals. Every Jewish store in the city was sacked and many were put afire.

At first the Jews were too much surprised to resist, but in the last hours of the fight several of the mob were killed and about fifty wounded.

NORWAY IS READY TO FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

STORTHING'S ACTION IS IRREVOCABLE, AND WILL BE SUPPORTED BY FORCE.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, June 13.—Norway will fight for her independence. Mr. Loveland, who will be installed as Foreign Minister of Norway on Thursday, made this assertion to-day. The action of the Storthing is irrevocable, he said:

No efforts have yet been made to have the powers recognize Norway, but a movement to that effect will be made in a few days. Mr. Loveland declares that when the independent powers hear their side of the matter he has no doubt that his country will be accorded recognition.

"When our case is presented to the powers," he added, "it will be seen that it is not one of antagonism to the principle of monarchies nor to a single monarchy. Norway has been a kingdom for many centuries and is proud of it. The dissolution of the union was purely on constitutional grounds. Our constitution existed prior to the union with Sweden, and when there came a conflict between the two peoples Norway chose to retain her constitution.

"Our difference with Sweden is in the first place economic. Our commercial interests, our tariffs and our entire economic policy differ from those of Sweden. While the diplomatic and consular services were based on the ideas governing the union of the two countries, they worked to the profit of Sweden rather than to that of Norway.

Will Fight If Necessary.

"Norway's merchant marine now ranks fourth among the nations, and Norway no longer can afford to negotiate with foreign powers through Stockholm. The union, however, was dissolved only when the conflict forced the question of our sovereignty.

"We hope the powers will make no mistake regarding our action. We have never tried to create danger for Sweden and will never seek to make difficulties for our sister country. We are acting for the benefit of the common interests of each other and for our common safety in the face of foreign danger.

"The action taken by the Storthing is irrevocable, and the powers should realize that Norway will fight before this action is reconsidered.

"The question of peace rests with Sweden, but the early recognition of our independence will be of interest to the powers as well as to ourselves.

Guard Rights Jealously.

"Immediately upon the dissolution of the union, Norway informed Sweden of her willingness to open diplomatic relations, but we are jealous of our independence and of our future, and will avoid all alliances and will not subject ourselves to the influence of any great power."

"Norwegian interests will not suffer during the interim in which the country would not be represented abroad. Fortunately, Norway's biggest trade is with Great Britain, Germany, the United States and France, where for a short period consuls are not indispensable."

WASHINGTON WILL WAIT FOR POWERS ON THE NEW NORWAY

WASHINGTON, June 13.—It is thought here that the lead in recognition of Norwegian independence will probably be taken by some European country. It is hardly deemed to be good policy for the United States to lead the way in matters of this kind.

M. A. Grip, probably the last diplomat who will ever be known in Washington as Minister of Sweden and Norway, yesterday called at the State Department to take leave of the acting secretary, Mr. Loomis. He will sail to-day from New York for his home in Norway. He has not resigned his post, but it is not expected that he will return to Washington in his present capacity. He has been Minister here since 1889, a longer period than any other diplomat, and for several years he has held the post of dean of the Ministers.

BODY OF LOST SOCIETY MAN FOUND IN RIVER

Irving H. Potter, Missing from Providence Home, Was Drowned.

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, June 13.—Shortly before 3 o'clock this morning the body of Irving H. Potter, the missing society man, was found in the Pawtuxet River, near Whittle's dye works at Bellfont, by a searching party.

Mr. Potter disappeared last Thursday. His overcoat and hat were found in a canoe which he hired, and the boat was some distance up-stream, with one oar missing.

He had been depressed for some time. His family was in doubt as to whether he had fallen overboard or had wandered away, but was inclined to believe that he was still alive.

Mr. Potter was a brother-in-law of the late Mayor Frank Fuller Olney and occupied a fine residence on the East Side.

After his disappearance stories were published to the effect that he was short in his accounts as head bookkeeper of Oliver Johnson and Company, a position he had held 25 years, and an expert was set at work on the books. The result of the investigation has not been made public.

FRIEND DEAD; YOUTH UP FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Towle, Accused of Causing the Death of Huse, Is Facing Trial.

ACCIDENT, FRIENDS SAY

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, June 13.—The police say that the plight of Joseph A. Towle, twenty years old, who was held in $1,00 by Judge Berry in the Lynn Police Court to-day on the charge of manslaughter, is due to drink. He is accused of causing the death of William A. Huse, his friend, with a push or a blow, which caused hemorrhage of the brain.

Towle, who has always been of good character, felt his position keenly when he stood at the bar of justice. He was red-eyed and pale. He may have been unmanned by a visit, while in a cell last night, by his parents. His father and mother, with tears in their eyes, told the jailers that the prisoner had always been a good boy and never was of violent temper. They maintain that if their son is in anyway responsible for the death of Huse it was accidental and that he never would have struck his friend except when provoked beyond endurance.

Declares He Meant No Harm.

Towle, who is a coachman in the employ of Dr. Ruppel and lives with his parents at No. 43 Park street, stoutly claims that he did not intend to harm Huse. He told them, the police say, that Huse struck at him several times while they were walking toward the West Lynn burial ground and that he finally pushed his assailant with his elbow. The latter fell and sustained concussion of the brain.

This occurred, the police assert, after the two men had been drinking heavily and had left a Market square resort on Sunday in an angry mood.

Huse was unconscious when picked up by Patrolman Murray, who arrested Towle. Taken to the Lynn Hospital, Huse died without recovering consciousness.

It is maintained by the prisoner and his friends that he did not intentionally strike Huse at all and if the latter was struck by Towle's elbow it was when the latter had thrust it forth to ward off blows aimed at him.

Medical Examiner Pinkham said after performing an autopsy that he found evidence of a blow inflicted on the right side of the dead man's head and a large blood clot on the left.

Hemorrhage Caused Death.

In court to-day, where Towle pleaded not guilty, the medical examiner said that hemorrhage was the cause of Huse's death. Dr. McGuigan was passing when Huse fell and after a rapid examination told Patrolman Murray to send the injured man to a hospital. Murray says that when he arrested Towle the prisoner told him his name was Henshaw.

Huse was about thirty years old and a painting contractor. He was a widower with one son and lived with his boy at No. 57 Pearl street.

LAUGHED AT CHILDREN WHEN AUTO KILLED PET DOG PRINCE

AGNES CONNORS
HELEN CONNORS

TWO LITTLE GIRLS, WHOSE PET DOG, PRINCE WAS KILLED BY AN AUTO

Fiendish Cruelty of Motor Party and Animal's Suffering Break Childish Hearts.

Two little girls at No. 50 Cranberry lane, Waltham, are heartbroken because their friend and companion, Prince, a big black and white dog, was killed by a cruel automobile. The sun no longer smiles for them and they are quite, quite sure they will never forget Prince nor forgive the people who rode over their pet.

"Agnes and I were going to pick flowers," explained Helen to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, "and of course Prince went with us. He went everywhere with us. We got up on Derby street when a big automobile came along like nightning. A cat was out in the road and Prince doesn't like cats. He ran after it and was right in front of the automobile, and the people saw him, too, but they kept right on and went over him.

"Agnes and I both cried and got Prince to hobble to the head of our street, but he couldn't get any farther. One of his legs was cut right off and I carried it home. Agnes was sure it could be put back on again. She's only six but I'm nine, and I knew better than that."

The recollection of the leg was to much for the little narrator and she began to sob violently. With a big gulp she went on:

"Then my mother came out of the house and sent my uncle to the police station. A long while afterwards, when Prince had suffered ever so much and looked so sad at us, the policeman came and shot him."

At this part of the story Agnes joined her sister in sobbing, and for a few minutes neither child could speak.

"But my Papa is tracing that automobile and will see what can be done about it, he says, for the people only turned around and laughed at us when they saw poor Prince lying all covered with blood in the road."

WOMAN SAVES 2 FROM THUGS

NEW YORK, June 13.—"If I only had had a revolver these highwaymen would never have gotten away. I would have shot, and shot to kill," said Mrs. Edward Schramm, the Brooklyn heroine, who came to the rescue of her husband and brother when they were being beaten and robbed in Furman street, Brooklyn, a short distance away from their home.

In telling the story at her home, No. 349 Furman street, last night, Mrs. Schramm said:

"When I realized what was happening I used the point of my umbrella as a bayonet and jabbed it into the faces of the highwaymen. It tore and lacerated them severely. At the same time I shouted at the top of my voice for the police. The umbrella attack soon made them take to their heels."

114 GRADUATES AT WEST POINT

Ten of the 114 graduates of West Point this year are New Englanders. Four are from Massachusetts, two from Maine, two from Rhode Island, one from Vermont and one from Connecticut. New Hampshire is the only New England State not represented this year.

The best known New England graduate is undoubtedly Charles D. Daly, Harvard's famous quarterback and football captain. For two seasons he was quarterback of the West Point eleven. The other New England graduates are Francis B. Wilby, Boston; George F. Waugh, Lowell; James F. Curley, Pittsfield; Robert C. Eddy, Simsbury, Ct.; Leroy Bartlett, Providence, R. I.; Ellery W. Wills, Franklin, Me.; Carroll H. Gardner, Wakefield, R. I.; Arthur W. Lane, Portland, Me.; Francis B. Upham, Bellows Falls, Vt.

MORE MARINE FIREMEN OUT

A general strike of firemen and oilers employed on the United Fruit Company's steamers has been ordered. When the Admiral Dewey reached her berth at Long Wharf the eighteen firemen and oilers employed on the steamer left her and refused to sign for a return trip.

The trouble started a few days ago, when an official of the company refused to allow James T. Mahoney, agent of the Atlantic Coast Marine Firemen's Union, to be present when the men were signing articles for another trip. It is a rule of the union that the agent shall be present when the men sign their articles. Upon the refusal of the official to allow Mr. Mahoney to witness the signing of the articles a strike was ordered.

Eighteen men struck from the Schley. It is understood strike orders will be sent to New York, Baltimore and New Orleans, where the company operates boats. Officials of the company say that so far they have had no trouble in getting firemen and oilers for their Southern trips.

TO PROBE MILL GIRL'S DEATH

MANCHESTER, N. H., June 13.—The body of Miss Cordelia Cote, which is ready to be shipped to Windsor Mills, Que., has been detained here pending an investigation as to the cause of the young woman's death.

Miss Cote was employed in the Stark Mills. Last Tuesday with a friend she engaged a room at the Linden House but was soon taken sick and died last Sunday. Mrs. Lena Brooks, who keeps the Linden House, says when she learned of Miss Cote's illness she inquired about her and was told that she was ill with the grip. She says Saturday two phyicians were called and the next she heard of the young woman she was dead.

The chum of the dead girl has left the Linden House, taking her effects with her. The medical referee will make a thorough investigation regarding the death to-day.

ROOSEVELT TO TALK ON TRIP

The delicacy of the far eastern situation, in which President Roosevelt now figures as a peace maker, has caused a few changes to be made in the President's plans for his trip to Massachusetts next week.

He will be in Worcester to attend the commencement exercises of Clark college and Holy Cross college June 21, and on June 22 will attend commencement at Williams college. Instead of going to his summer home at Oyster Bay, from Williamstown he will go direct to Washington, and stay there until June 27, when he will leave for Harvard, where he is to attend commencement exercises.

While enroute to Washington President Roosevelt will make 10 minute addresses at North Adams and Pittsfield. At Pittsfield he will be introduced to Mayor Bagg by Senator Crane who will in turn present him to the crowd at the station.

Members of Harvard union have arranged to have a luncheon with the President at the university clubhouse on commencement day. There will be no formal exercises, and the number to attend is limited to 500.

RYAN PLANS A GIGANTIC TRUST

NEW YORK, June 13.—It is believed in financial circles that the organization of the largest trust company in the United States, and one of the largest financial institutions of the world, was a part of the plan of Thomas F. Ryan in negotiating the purchase of the stock of the Equitable Life Assurance Society held by James H. Hyde.

Mr. Ryan's plan is said to be to consolidate the Equitable Trust Company, the Mercantile Trust Company and the Morton Trust Company, with the latter in control.

It is expected that this would result in creating a financial institution with deposits second only to those of the National Bank of this city, which has deposits of $185,000,000. The deposits of the proposed consolidated trust company would amount to $169,000,000.

NO CONFERENCE IN FALL RIVER MILL TROUBLE

Manufacturers Refuse to Meet Operatives and Discuss the Industrial Situation.

UNREST AMONG EMPLOYES

FALL RIVER, June 13.—Members of the Manufacturers' Association have denied the request of the Textile Council for a conference on the present situation in the textile business. The labor men take the refusal of the manufacturers to talk over the wage and other situations as an evidence of being unwilling to meet conditions fairly.

The Textile Council and the millmen without a murmur accepted Governor Douglas's report on the strike situation, although it cost the strikers everything. There is even now great unrest among the mill operatives over the wage question, and the officers of the Textile Council had hoped to arrange a settlement of differences through a conference with the millmen.

The letter refusing to confer over the situation was received by Thomas Taylor, secretary of the council. It is:

"Dear Sir—Your letter of the 6th inst., requesting a conference to discuss the indusrial condition, has been duly received and has had our careful consideration. In reply we will say that while the industrial situation is very unsatisfactory, we believe that the most necessary thing for the return to a normal condition is a complete avoidance of all agitation. We, therefore, think that a conference at this time would be of no benefit."

Mr. Taylor expressed his disappointment at the contents of the letter. He said he had hoped that a conference would be arranged, and he believed, he said, that good would have resulted. He said the loomfixers were restless and that he is in daily receipt of offers from adjoining cities for help at an increased rate over that paid here.

President James Tansey of the Textile Council said:

"I am somewhat surprised at the reply of the manufacturers and I am disappointed. I believe that at the present time a conference would have only beneficial results."

Other members of the Textile Council believe the refusal will intensify the discontent among the operatives and stimulate the exodus of skilled hands to other manufacturing centres, which has been going steadily on for several months, causing serious embarrassment to the mills.

DEPORTED ONCE, BACK BY CANADA

DOVER, N. H., June 13.—Peter Burrows, an Englishman who came here, it is charged, under contract to be assistant superintendent of the new velvet mill of the Cocheco Manufacturing Company, has been arrested by Inspector Frank Quinn of the Boston immigration office.

He was taken to Boston for a hearing before the Federal authorities on a charge of violating the alien contract labor law. It is said that Burrows came to this country from England, arriving in Boston on April 21. He was detained, it is alleged, and after a hearing was deported to England on April 23. It is asserted that he at once boarded a steamer for Montreal, and from that city came to Dover.

SEEK INSANE MAN IN WOODS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., June 13.—Howard Hawley, son of Mrs. Mary Hawley, a wealthy resident of Sandy Hook, in Newtown, eluded a keeper from a sanitarium and is still at large.

Hawley with an attendant walked in the fields. When they came to a barbed wire fence Hawley held the wires apart and told his keeper to step through. The man did so unsuspectingly and then saw Hawley running for the woods. He had disappeared when the keeper extricated himself from the barbed wire.

SEND MESSAGE BY PIGEONS

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—On the morning of June 24 John Parkinson of this city will release at the City Hall steps six carrier pigeons bearing the following message from Mayor Wells to Mayor Collins of Boston:

"The Mayor of the city of St. Louis transmits greetings to the Mayor of the city of Boston, through his carrier pigeon messenger. If successfully conveyed it will demonstrate a long flight, which is infinitely small to the long prosperity that we wish the people of Boston."

The message will be relayed at Louisville, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, Washington, New York and Pawtucket, arriving in Boston about July 1.

FINED FOR POOR WORK; STRIKE

EAST BROOKFIELD, June 13.—The Mann-Stevens mills are entirely tied up, 250 employes being out on a strike on account of a new system of fines for imperfect work by weavers.

John Stevens conferred with the strikers and urged them to work a week and see how they like the new arrangement, promising that there will be no deductions for a week. As he would not attempt to forecast what would happen then, the employees voted to stay out until the notices are removed.

NEW YORK TO PARIS BY RAIL

NEW YORK, June 13.—The all-rail route to make the trip from New York to Paris possible without an ocean voyage and to render Alaska accessible at all seasons of the year has the approval of well-known engineers.

The author of the project to tunnel under Behring Straits, M. Loicq de Lobel, of Paris, who has been in New York for the last month, sails on Thursday on the French liner La Savoie, taking with him, so he asserts, the legally attested signatures of more than thirty well-known American capitalists and engineers who approve his general plans, and who will act as the American executive committee.

MRS. HOWARD GOULD'S LAUGH STOPS COURT TRIAL OF "CASTLE" SUIT

Architect Says That Wife of the Millionaire Ordered Him Out of Hotel.

Abner J. Haydel Tells How He Drew Nineteen Plans; He Wants $60,000 Damages.

NEW YORK, June 13.—After nineteen attempts to satisfy Mrs. Howard Gould with a set of plans for her husband's country estate, now known as Castle Gould, Abner J. Haydel, an architect, declared in court that the parting of the ways came when Mrs. Gould threatened to have him put out of the Waldorf-Astoria.

According to the architect, he drew enough plans to set up a fair-sized village. He journeyed to Ireland and made copies of Castle Kilkenny, which Castle Gould was to represent; he filled reams of paper with facades, sectional views, interiors, bird's-eye views and landscape approaches.

HOWARD GOULD
MRS. HOWARD GOULD
TWO VIEWS OF CASTLE GOULD AT SANDS POINT, L.I

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD GOULD AND THEIR CASTLE.

But ever and always Mrs. Gould, he says, had some improvements to suggest, some alterations to be made, some towers to be moved, and finally, when she demanded that he furnish three separate sets of all the plans that had made, on costly paper, and ordered him from her presence when he demurred, he decided to bring suit for $60,000 for services rendered up to and including the time the nineteenth successive plan was drawn.

Mrs. Gould Amused.

The suit was called for trial before Justice Keogh, in the Supreme Court at Mineola, L. I. Though Mr. Gould is nominally the defendant, it is Mrs. Gould's suit, for the testimony shows that she did all the negotiating, and furnished the preliminary rough sketches of the castle that was to rear itself up at Port Washington, a perfect replica in every respect of the famous Kilkenny Castle in Ireland

Mrs. Gould was attired in a lavender costume, with a polo hat. She took a seat immediately beside her counsel, and prompted him during the rest of the day. She followed the testimony of Mr. Haydel closely, and when the witness graphically described how he had been ordered out of the Waldorf by her, Mrs. Gould first looked incredulous and then laughed aloud and long.

This laugh momentarily stopped the proceedings, surprised the Judge, embarrassed the witness and piqued the attorney for the plaintiff. When it was over the case was resumed.

Ordered Him Out.

Speaking of the Waldorf episode, Haydel told of Mrs. Gould's anger when he refused to furnish three copies of the plans.

"What did she say?" asked Mr. Thorne.

"Turning to me," continued the witness, "she said:

"'Do you see that door, Mr. Architect? You go right out of that door.'

"She was standing beside her husband, to whom I turned and said:

"'Mr. Gould, I am here on business and I want to be protected against such treatment.'"

It was at this point that Mrs. Gould laughed the laugh that made the Court frown and delayed the proceeding a full minute.

"Please continue now," said Mr. Thorne to the witness.

"Well," said the architect. "Mrs. Gould then became more excited and shouted:

"'If you don't get out of here I will get the porter to put you out.' Thereupon she rang the bell and a porter came to the door. I turned to Mr. and Mrs. Gould and said: 'What is your pleasure?'"

"'You will be here at 8 o'clock next Thursday?' said Mrs. Gould.

"I then left the room."

ROTHSCHILD FAMILY LOSES ANOTHER BARON

VIENNA, June 13.—Baron Nathaniel Rothschild, a brother of the head of the Vienna banking house of the greatest financial firm in the world, has just died, and is the second member of the family to pass away within eighteen days.

He was not so well known in the financial world as Baron Alphonse de Rothschild of Paris, head of the French branch of the business conducted all over the world by the descendants of Mayer Anselm Rothschild, who was born in Judenstrasse, Frankfort, 162 years ago. Baron Alphonse died May 26.

Mayer Anselm Rothschild was the greatest financial genius known to mankind.

The house he founded grew so rich and powerful within a century that, it is said of it, no country in Europe can go to war without its consent. The Rothschilds finance nations. Within a century they have loaned Great Britain alone one billion dollars. To other European countries, it is estimated, they have loaned $1,300,000,000. They have invested more than $50,000,000 in United States bonds. Their money helped build the New York subway.

The Vienna branch is under the management of Baron Ferdinand Rothschild, brother of Baron Nathaniel. The funeral of the latter will be simple, in accordance with the family custom. The coffin will be plain and without mourning tributes.

'MAUD' MAKES HER DEBUT IN VAUDEVILLE

Famous Boston Sunday American Mule Subject of Song in "The Earl and the Girl."

She has made her debut in vaudeville. And her name is Maud!

Maud, the famous mule, which is a feature of the comic section of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, is the heroine of one of the verses in the topical song in which Alexander Clark, as Jim Cheese, in "The Earl and the Girl," at the Boston Theatre, is making a decided hit.

Mr. Clark has introduced new verses from time to time to satisfy the demand for encores. He writes these verses himself, having a metrical habit, "neat but not gaudy."

He was trying to think of something catchy and up-to-date to write about and "Maud" came to him.

You know Maud. She is the deceiving creature with a subdued look in her eyes and battle, murder and sudden death in her heels. She takes reproof humbly, then kicks you over the horizon. As you pursue the landscape she brays, "Hee-haw!"

That's Maud.

So Mr. Clark comes out now for an encore with a pleased grin on his face, carefully adjusts his right toe three points abaft his left heel and sings:

"I stood upon a corner with an apple in my hand,
A mule was standing close to me—she wore a smile so bland.
She grabbed that apple from my fist and loudly she hee-hawed,
'Don't you read the Sunday paper?' I was on—her name was Maud."

"Hereafter," says Mr. Cheese:
(Chorus).
"What's good enough for Maudie is good enough for me.
She kicked me here, behind the ear, until I couldn't see.
The next time that I meet her, I'll do a 'twenty-three,'
Which simply means, skidoo, get out—that's good enough for me."

The obliging Mr. Clark also sang about "If it's good enough for Emmons" and "If it's good enough for Whipple," in two other verses. The Whipple aforesaid is J. Reed, who runs a few taverns.

This topical song by Mr. Clark is one of "the songs" of the show. It divides honors with "Don't You Want to Spoon With Me," as sung by Miss Georgia Caine, Victor Morley and chorus, which is being whistled from Sullivan square to the Blue Hills.

$100,000 STEAL FROM OIL TRUST

CHICAGO, June 13.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Van Buren, Ind., says:

That merchants in this vicinity have been fleeced out of $100,000 by bogus checks on the Standard Oil May pay roll has developed on the arrival here of Assistant Treasurer F. S. Davis from New York to investigate. The forged pay checks range in face value from $80 to $100, and are duplicate numbers of the genuine Standard checks.

The forgeries passed the banks and were not discovered until checking up began at the company's office. The signature of F. S. Blake, treasurer of the company, was so well imitated that it deceived bankers familiar with it.

'REGGIE' WARD ABANDONS HIS TITLE OF COUNT

Former Boston Pedler to Marry Elderly Dowager Countess of Howe.

LONDON, June 13.—Reginald Henshaw Ward, American millionaire, society man, friend of King Edward, fiance of the Dowager Countess of Howe, and once a pedler in Boston, has abandoned his title of "Count."

The title was conferred on him by Pope Leo XIII., and he became a hereditary count of the Roman empire.

In spite of his social prominence in London, however, the title was not recognized, and it seemed incongruous to his fellow countrymen abroad. It subjected Ward to a great deal of adverse criticism.

He wasn't the sort of man to be dashed by that, however, having read satirical comments on his clothes, his dandified manner, his long finger nails, his divorce, his social aspirations and his approaching marriage to the elderly Countess in the public prints for a long time. But evidently the title of Count appeared a trifle absurd to him, and his cards read simply "Mr. Reginald Ward."

The marriage of Ward and the Dowager Countess Howe promises to be one of the social events of the next London season. Ward has climbed steadily upward in the social scale since his arrival in London. He married his sister to Captain Blackburn-Tew, a heavy English swell, and his garden fetes and entertainments have been the talk of London.

He is a descendant of Artemus Ward, of Revolutionary fame. His wife, Edyth Newcomb, was a famous Kentucky belle, whom he married in New York. She was a daughter of General H. Victor Newcomb, a rather recent millionaire of New York. She did not accompany Ward when he went to England to reside, and soon afterward obtained a divorce.

Ward has been quite a collector of titles. Besides being referred to as a "copper king," Pope Leo made him a count; the King of Portugal made him a Knight Commander of the Portuguese order of Christo; the Queen Regent of Spain, before Alfonso's accession, made him a Knight Commander of the Royal Order of St. Charles, and the King of Servia bestowed upon him the title of Knight Commander of the Royal Order of Takova of Servia. He is also a Chevalier of San Carlos, another Spanish decoration.

HOCH, SCION OF MARSHAL NEY

CHICAGO, June 13.—Johann Hoch, who is to die on the gallows on June 23 for the murder of Marie Walcker-Hoch, is the great-grandson of Marshal Ney, who went to St. Helena with Napoleon, and the scion of a prominent family in Strassburg, according to a statement made by Hoch to-day. Two of his brothers are ministers in Strassburg. His father, also a minister and retired at the age of 82, lives in Toulon, ignorant of the plight of his son.

For the first time the condemned man has broken the silence he maintained since his arrest. He said:

"My father's people are Alsatians, and not Germans. My mother's people are all French. I am the great-grandson of Marshal Ney. I shall die a week from Friday, but I shall die a man innocent of guilt, a man who speaks the truth."

EXPLORER'S WIDOW IN WILDS OF LABRADOR

Mrs. Leonidas Hubbard and Dillon Wallace Head Rival Expeditions.

MYSTERY OF WILDERNESS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Two expeditions, distinct from each other and the members of one unaware of the other's efforts, have gone into the wild interior of Labrador—the first to explore the unknown parts of the land, the second to learn the exact conditions under which Leonidas Hubbard, Jr., the daring young explorer, died there in October, 1903. They are in search of a strange secret in the wilderness.

Mrs. Hubbard, widow of the explorer, is in personal charge of the latter expedition, while Dillon Wallace, companion of her husband on his journey, heads the former.

Mrs. Hubbard and Wallace, formerly mutually interested in exploration, have been estranged since Hubbard's death because of certain statements made by Wallace in his book about the ill-fated expedition.

Doubts Her Friend's Husband.

Not until they meet at the spot where Hubbard was found dying from exhaustion and starvation, will the Wallace party learn that Mrs. Hubbard is on the same trail.

In the stillness of the Arctic wastes may come the climax of this drama in which a wife, through devotion to her husband's memory, doubts the man who called him friend.

Whether the woman or the man will come out of the wilderness with a deeper enmity or with their differences repaired will not be known until months from now. The trail is long and dangerous. Mrs. Hubbard is well on her journey, having already plunged into Labrador, and Mr. Wallace is not many days before her.

With her is George Gelsen, the half-breed guide who accompanied her husband and Wallace in 1903 and led a party of rescuers to them, too late to save Hubbard, and just in time to drag his companion out of the wilds back to the borders of civilization.

To Study the Wilderness.

Wallace wanted Gelsen to be his guide this time, but the Indian said he could not go because he had recently married. But it is not known that he had already contracted to lead Mrs. Hubbard's expedition.

Mrs. Hubbard has never been convinced that everything was done that could have aided in saving the life of her husband. And when Mr. Wallace, in his book, criticized Hubbard for misjudgment in plunging into the wilderness without sufficient knowledge of the country and "without provisions," she determined to learn the truth for herself.

She went to Alonzo G. McLaughlin of No. 15 William street, manager of the Hubbard estate, and he provided the necessary funds for the expedition.

ASKS POLICE TO SEEK MOTHER, LOST FOR YEARS

Washington Girl Writes to Superintendent Pierce for Aid in Her Search.

A pathetic letter from a young woman in Washington, signing herself "Lillian C. Jackson," was received to-day by Superintendent Pierce of the Boston Police Department, requesting his aid in locating the writer's mother. The local police will do all in their power to find some trace of the missing woman. The letter follows:

Chief of Police of Boston, Mass.,

Dear Sir: I want to ask you if you won't help find my mother, from whom I have been lost since I was a little girl. I and four other children were born in Boston. Fifteen years ago my father and mother separated and father brought us children, Ethel, Alice, Willie, Dottie and Lillian, to Washington. He then deserted us. We finally were separated and for years one did not know where the others were.

In January, a year ago, I found one of my sisters, who is younger than I am and who lives eight miles distant. As both of us work for our living we see each other but seldom. This makes us both very anxious to find our mother. I have no idea where mother is, but she was born in Boston, lived there always, so far as I know, married there and all of her children were born there. Her maiden name was Maggie Ethel Kelley. Her married name was Mrs. W. C. Jackson.

My mother's father was a blacksmith by trade and worked with his sons in a shop in Roxbury. What his given name was I do not know. Kelley was his last name.

He had quite a large family of boys and all were well known in Roxbury and Boston Highlands. I have made every effort I knew how to find mother and I have been offered assurance if I would send so much money, but I am absolutely unable to send any money as I make only enough to live on.

I sincerely hope I have not asked too much of you and also that the local police may be able to find some trace of my people.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, yours very sincerely,

LILLIAN C. JACKSON.

BADLY BURNED, BUT BOOKS SAFE

Augustus D. McLennan was badly burned about the head while trying to extinguish a fire in the basement of the lodging house where he lives, at No. 548 Columbus avenue, in an effort to save a valuable set of books which was stored there. He saved his books, and was treated for his burns by Dr. Charles Bouin, who has rooms in the house.

The lodging house is run by Lena McPherson, and owned by Lewis Keiffer of No. 136 Summer street. The damage will not exceed $500. All of the lodgers were awake when the fire started, and got into the street safely, although the entire house was filled with thick, choking smoke.

MOTHER WILL FIGHT HARD TO GET STOLEN CHILD

Mrs. John J. Frawley Hires a Lawyer to Search for Her Daughter Grace.

Girl Was Taken by Her Father From Dorchester Last Saturday.

MARY GRACE FRAWLEY

CHILD FOR WHOM PARENTS CONTEND.

Special to the Boston American.

PLYMOUTH, June 13.—"I don't know where my child is—I can only keep on praying," said Mrs. John J. Frawley, whose daughter was kidnapped by her father in Dorchester last Saturday.

Mrs. Frawley was hurrying from a telephone booth after consulting her attorney, W. J. Coughlin of Abington. She made a flying trip to this town and saw two or three people concerning the search she is making for her five-year-old child, Mary Grace Frawley.

Her husband is also here, but he is extremely non-communicative regarding the kidnapping and the present whereabouts of the child. The little girl was not with him when he drove into town on his return from Boston, where he succeeded in getting her from her mother while a friend of his held a revolver to Mrs. Frawley's head. There is a suspicion that he brought the little girl with him but left her at some friend's home near town.

Mrs. Frawley arrived in the midst of a drenching rain. Paying no heed to the weather, she procured a team and drove to the home of a former neighbor, Mrs. Martha Pierce, at Chiltonville, four miles from here, where she and her husband spent the early years of their married life. Mrs. Pierce was not at home, but was visiting the family of Herbert Griffin.

Thither through the pouring rain, Mrs. Frawley drove. The object of her quest was to learn if possible any trace of her daughter and also to get the address of the attorney whom she has engaged to conduct her fight for the recovery of the child. Finally Mrs. Frawley learned the lawyer's address from Mrs. Elmer E. Douglass, No. 39 Mayflower street, but she was able to find out nothing about the little girl!

Immediately upon learning Mr. Coughlin's address she engaged him by telephone, and after a short consultation left for Abington.

Mr. Frawley smiles grimly when asked about the case. He refuses to make any statement beyond saying when asked a question regarding the child:

The police of this town deny the report in one of the Boston papers to the effect that Mr. Frawley is a dissipated man. They declare that whatever his past may have been he has kept at his work and he has been temperate for more than a year, even when license prevailed here.

While running across a grave he fell and struck the stone at its head. The stone being loose toppled over and fell upon his abdomen, pinning him to the earth.

WOMAN INJURED IN FALL FROM CARRIAGE

NORWOOD, June 13.—While alighting from her carriage in front of the office of her brother-in-law, William Fisher, in the Bigelow building, Mrs. Charles Fisher fell and struck on the curbing. A physician found that her hip had been fractured.

She was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital in an ambulance.

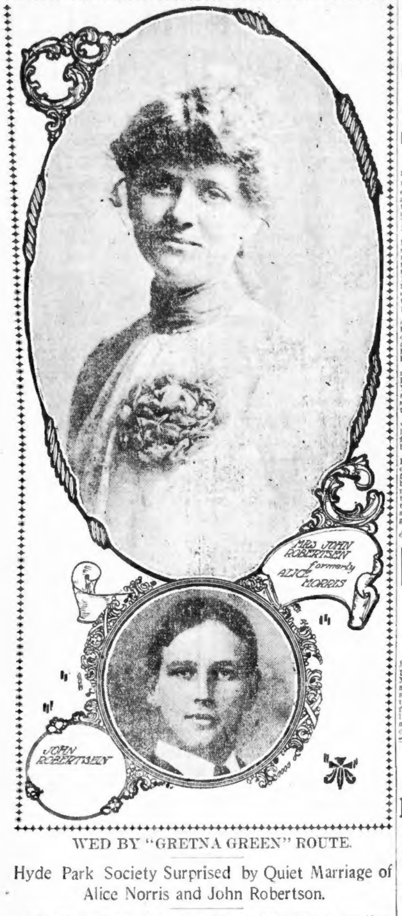
YOUNG FOLKS STEAL OFF TO PROVIDENCE AND WED



MRS. JOHN ROBERTSEN formerly ALICE NORRIS
JOHN ROBERTSEN

WED BY "GRETNA GREEN" ROUTE.

Hyde Park Society Surprised by Quiet Marriage of Alice Norris and John Robertson.

Hyde Park furnished its eloping couple to be wed in Providence, when Miss Alice Norris, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Norris, and John Robertson, twenty-one, stole away and were married in the Rhode Island city by the Rev. Mathew McCord. The ceremony was performed last Saturday and the young people returned to Hyde Park Saturday night. Sunday morning they told the bride's mother of the wedding. They had been engaged a year. Mrs. Norris, mother of the bride, when seen by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, said:

"Yes, it is true that my daughter and Jack were married Saturday at Providence. They have been engaged for a year and were to be married in the Fall, but I suppose the engagement was too long and they decided to take matters in their own hands and go to Providence. It was a surprise to me, for I was looking forward to a wedding at the house. But it is all over now, and perhaps it is all for the best. The young folks are living with us and will continue to do so far a while."

The young couple are very well known in the town and both have a large circle of friends who were much surprised to hear of the marriage. Mr. Robertson was captain of the Hyde Park basketball team and in all branches of athletics took a prominent part. He is at present working in the office at the Mattapan Mills.

Claussen, a wealthy commission merchant, doing business at No. 19 Whitehall street, and a member of the Produce Exchange for twenty years, met a terrible death early to-day by falling through a window of the apartments where he lived with his wife and son on the top floor of a handsome residence at No. 113 West Seventy-sixth street. His body was found lying in the areaway underneath the window out of which he fell.

His wife, who is in a serious condition from the shock, thinks he was a victim of a nightmare.

SEARS'S WILL GIVES ESTATE TO HIS FAMILY

Property Left in Trust for Five Years by Mrs. Sears, Charles F. and Joseph H. Choate.

REMEMBERS OLD SERVANTS

The will of the late J. Montgomery Sears, which was filed yesterday afternoon in the Probate Court, is a simple document, disposing of his property, real and personal, now estimated at $4,000,000, to the members of his immediate family, and making no public bequests whatever. The will bears the date of February 3, 1886, and two codicils are attached.

By the terms of the original will the household goods and equipment of the stables are left to Mrs. Sears. The remainder of the property is left in trust for five years, at the expiration of which time it is to be divided equally between Mrs. Sears and his son, J. Montgomery Sears. By a codicil made after the birth of his daughter, Helen, it provides that the estate shall be divided into three parts, one-third to go to each.

In case of the death of the members of the family one-third of the estate is bequeathed to Mr. Mr. Sears's first cousins, one-third to Charles F. Choate or his heirs, and one-third to Alpheus Hardy or his heirs. Mrs. Sears is appointed guardian of her son.

The executors and trustees of the estate named in the will are Mrs. Sears, Charles F. Choate and Joseph H. Choate of New York. It is provided that the executors shall be exempt from giving bonds or sureties and from filing an inventory of the property.

The executors are empowered to fill any vacancies in their body and are particularly directed to remember any old and faithful servants who shall have been in his employ for a period of five years.

The first codicil to the will is dated February 10, 1886. It provides that in case of the death of his wife and son before his own death, his Arlington street home, the farm at Southboro and the Summer place at Bar Harbor, together with the furniture, stock and other appurtenances, shall go to Charles F. Choate; and in case of Mr. Choate's death it should go to Mr. Sears's natural heirs.

The second codicil, providing for his daughter, bears the date of April 27, 1893.

DISFIGURED BY JEALOUS SWAIN

Mortinese then fled, but was arrested a few hours later in Providence, where he confessed to the assault.

Every dentist connected with Dr. King's offices is an expert in a special branch of dentistry, and operates under the personal direction of Dr. King. He must be a graduate of one of the largest colleges and have been registered by the State Board of Dentistry; also he must have studied the King Safe System of Painless Dentistry at least six months before he operates in any of Dr. King's offices. Umpire—Connoly.

Two days' absence from the diamond will put the Champs and Lajoie's larrupers in fighting trim for their argument at the Back Bay esplanade this afternoon.

The Naps are in a crippled state, with Buelow and Joss suspended, causing Nig Clarke to divide up the backstopping with Harry Bemis, and the latter is not in any kind of shape.

Lajoie is not the man to say that his team is weakened in the least and would not utter a word of complaint unless half his team were disabled.

The Cleveland fans are expecting a hoodoo to get after their team and are afraid that the suspension of two of the players is the beginning of trouble.

Last year the team met with hard luck, and it is rarely that a team that has been having the best of things coming its way does not get into trouble sooner or later, as was seen when the Champs had their slump last year.

The present leaders could not meet the Champs in better condition, and to-day and to-morrow will settle a lot of guessing as to the ability of the two teams.

Bill Dinneen will shove the pellets over for the Champs, and he is pitching to fasten on another defeat for the Indians.

FLICK, CLEVELAND INDIANS' GREAT OUTFIELDER

This is a picture of Flick, the great outfielder of Lajoie's team. It was taken by a BOSTON AMERICAN photographer at the Huntington avenue grounds. Flick is keeping up his record this year, both at the bat and in the field, and is one of the most valuable Indians.

FRASER MAY PITCH FOR TENNEYITES

PITTSBURG, June 13.—Encouraged by their first victory in six games, the Boston Nationals will strike all the harder to down the Pirates in the battle this afternoon. Robertaille is carded to pitch for the home aggregation, while Chick Fraser is likely to do the box honors for the visitors.

Fraser is in good form at present and hopes to down the Pirates should Captain-manager Fred Tenney decide to send him to the firing line. Moreover, Robertaille is in excellent shape, and with these two crack artists at their best the playing should be interesting.

"Young Cy's" Great Work.

The work of "Young Cy" in the opening game has set all the local fans talking, as they expected that the Bostons, after losing four straight to the Chicago Colts, would be easy meat. Needless to say Young lived up to expectations. Boston was stronger than it has been for the past week, as Needham, the star catcher, was able to get back into harness.

While the game yesterday was close (4 to 3), it was free from exciting incident and sensational plays were few and far between. Batting honors were even, each side registering nine hits, but Boston managed to bunch three of its bingles in the sixth inning, while only in two rounds did the locals succeed in bunching two hits.

Dolan made two good catches in right field, while Delehanty took care of a pair of difficult shots to his territory.

Young Fielded Well.

In addition to pitching effectively Young fielded his position in fine style. Abbaticchio and Tenney also came in for applause for making nice plays.

On the Pittsburg side Beaumont's catch of Needham's drive near the centre field fence was the one bright fielding feature.

Locals rooters are inclined to blame defeat on Umpire O'Day because he called Clarke out at the plate in the third inning, when Needham dropped the ball after it had been passed to him by Tenney. O'Day excused his blunder by saying that he did not see the ball drop to the ground and roll a distance of three feet before it was recovered by Needham. This ruling cost the Pirates two runs.

YALE SURE TO GET THOMPSON

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, June 13.—Captain Jack Cates of the Yale track team stated to-day that he has a letter from Thompson, the big Andover football guard, in which Thompson says he is coming to Yale next Fall. A report reached Yale last week that Thompson was going to Harvard.

Yale has been planning to have Thompson fill the position of guard on the Yale eleven made vacant by the graduation of Ralph Kinney this month. It was a blow to hear that Thompson would go to Harvard and Cates, an old Andover friend of Thompson, wrote him in regard to the rumor.

HART TO COACH AMHERST AGAIN

AMHERST, June 13.—A number of changes have been made in Amherst's football schedule since first announced. Amherst will play Vermont at Amherst instead of Brown at Providence, and Storrs Agricultural College at Amherst instead of Rutgers. The schedule, as revised, is as follows:

September 7—Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Amherst; October 7—Storrs Agricultural College at Amherst; 14—Bowdoin at Amherst; 21—Columbia at New York; 28—University of Vermont at Amherst; November 4—Holy Cross at Worcester; 11—Dartmouth at Amherst; 18—Williams at Williamstown.

Coach Hart, who has been so successful the past two seasons, has been re-engaged, and the prospects for a good team next fall are bright.

GRANITE STATE RUNNING RACE COURSE CHOSEN

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., June 13.—Running horse races will be conducted in this State on an extensive scale next year, according to a statement given out by the New England Breeders' Club, incorporated by this year's State Legislature.

Andrew Miller of New York, steward of the Jockey Club, will have immediate supervision of the construction of the track, and associated with him on the board of directors will be Perry Belmont and R. T. Wilson, Jr., of New York City, representing New York interests, while Boston and New Hampshire capital will be looked after by men of equal prominence. It is expected that arrangements will be completed in time to inaugurate races by May 15, 1906.

A tract of land covering 400 acres has been secured by the club, near Salem Depot. On this will be constructed an elliptical track one and one-eighth miles in circumference, with three-quarters of a mile straightaway. Provisions are also made in the plans for a steeplechase course and club houses and stables. A large force of men will be employed on the grounds all Summer to push the work to completion as rapidly as possible.

FRESHMEN WILL LEAVE TODAY

Harvard's varsity oarsmen left Cambridge for Red Top yesterday afternoon. The crew men left Boston shortly after 3 o'clock and were due to arrive at their headquarters on the Thames in time for their first practice row of the year on the historic course. The shells had preceded the crews and were waiting them on their arrival. Only the varsity eight and four-oared with substitutes went to the Thames yesterday. The freshmen will follow today, as their funds are a little short and they have to cut expenses.

Fourteen men made up the squad. They were the regular men in the eight—Captain Filley, Meier, Bacon, Lawson, Newhall, Flint, Tappan and Burchard—the regulars in the four-oar—Farley, George, Gill and Corlett—with Pleasanton and Shepard as substitutes. Coach Wray, Coxswains Chase and Montgomery, and first and second Managers Morgan and Whitney, with an examination proctor and a medical examiner, completed the squad.

When the special car bearing the crew left Harvard square there was a heavy rain falling. This, combined with dissatisfaction with the crews' work, had evidently dampened the ardor of the undergraduate body, and not more than a hundred men showed up to cheer the crews off.

Despite this, undergraduate feeling at Harvard is not hopeless over the outlook for the Crimson oarsmen. The shakeup after the Cornell race has done the Crimson boat a world of good, and the men are now rowing more effectively and with more drive than at the time of the race with the Ithacans. The four-oar is a combination that the Elis will find hard to beat, as is also the freshman eight.

F. H. Goodhue, '06, manager of the varsity football team; N. Kelley, '06, next year's manager of the baseball team, and G. T. Sugden, '07, assistant manager of the nine next season, were elected undergraduate members of the Harvard Athletic Committee for the ensuing year.

RYAN MEETS SULLIVAN AT DOUGLAS A. C.

One of the fiercest lightweight contests that has taken place in the East is on the programme at the Douglas A. C. to-night, and all the members of the big Chelsea Club will be in attendance.

Peter Sullivan, of Fall River, who has twice taken the measure of Jimmy Briggs, the pride of Chelsea, is one of the boys who will figure with Adam Ryan, who gave Battling Nelson one of the hardest battles in his career.

Both boys are the toughest kind of scrappers, full of the fighting spirit, and a contest bristling with steamy wallops and hard counters is sure to materialize.

Local fans have been wondering how such a fast-stepping boy as Briggs should be beaten by Sullivan in two straight matches, and have long wanted to get a look at his style, and now that the chance has come many will want to size him up.

He has not had the same amount of experience as Ryan, but to defeat Briggs showed that he had enough to go up against any kind of game and give a good account of himself.

It will also be Ryan's first appearance in the Hub, and his one desire is to make good here, which makes the conditions of the bout just what the fans like.

Kid Carter says that he will put it all over Artie McGinnis, of Cambridge, when they meet in the first preliminary, and Jack Blair, the Quaker lad, will endeavor to graduate from the prelim ranks by beating Jack Mack of Bridgeport.

WHY SPITBALL IS HURTING PITCHERS

"I have been using the spitball longer than any other pitcher in the business," said Elmer Stricklett, the Brooklyn twirler, who is credited with being the inventor of this delivery, "but as yet it has had no bad effect upon my arm. It is claimed that several users of the spitball, particularly Jack Chesbro, who did such great work for the New York Americans last season, are suffering from the effects of using the delivery. While this may be true, I don't think that the spitball should be condemned or dropped on this account. The reason why the spitball may have a wearing effect on the arms of these pitchers is that they use it too much and do not know how to use it properly. It has long been a recognized fact that if a pitcher throws a drop ball too often it will ruin his arm, this having been demonstrated on many occasions, particularly with left-handed twirlers, who can throw a better drop than the right-arm flingers. It is the same with throwing the spitball.

"If a pitcher uses it too much and exerts himself unnecessarily in throwing it he eventually will weaken his arm, for there is a greater strain to delivering the spitball than there is to ordinary pitching. Personally I seldom try to put any speed on the spitball. The drop it takes is quite enough to fool the batsman without putting any additional puzzling qualities to it. By using it mainly as a slow ball and not depending upon it entirely to make me effective I have succeeded in going through several years of use of the spitball without having it weaken me in the least."

PULLIAM TO PAY BACK ALL FINES

PITTSBURG, June 13.—President Harry Pulliam of the National issued the following statement in regard to the decision of Judge Sheldon, of Boston, in the McGraw case:

"I much regret the outcome of the so-called McGraw litigation at Boston, not so much that it affects me personally or my future administration of affairs of the National League, but on account of the encouragement it gives to rowdyism in professional baseball.

"There were three riots on baseball fields last week, one in the American League, one in the National League and one in the outlaw Tri-State League. As a result of one instance the manager of one club is now under bonds in Criminal Court to keep the peace.

"In fining McGraw I simply followed the letter of the law as given me unanimously by every National League club owner, and if I was wrong in that case I was wrong in every case I have acted on during my three years' administration.

"Judge Sheldon in Boston held that the Fleischman resolution was dead, for the reason that it was not re-enacted by the Nationl League after the adoption of the new constitution. He held that under the Brush resolution any player removed from the game must be fined $10, with no appeal, but that if I took any further steps under section 28 of the constitution I must give the player a trial. I fined McGraw under the Fleischman resolution, as I did McGann, and as long as I am president of the National League there cannot be one law for John McGraw and another for Dan McGann.

"Following up Judge Sheldon's decision, on my return to New York I shall request a meeting of the board of directors, and as a member of the board of directors I shall vote for the remission of every fine levied this year under the Fleischman resolution where the penalty was more than $10. This will mean the return to the following players of the following sums: McGann, $90; Blenkenship, $90; Warner, $90; Clymer, $110; Abbott, $40; Scheckard, $20; Wagner, $20, and Kelley, $20."

SAYS BALL PLAYERS ARE TOO WELL PAID

"Until there has been an adjustment of salaries in the minor league," said Manager Hanlon of the Brooklyn team, who also is president of the Baltimore club of the Eastern League, "there will be little profit shown by the clubs of the various circuits in the National association. The magnates simply are strangling themselves financially by paying the exorbitant prices that now rule among the minors and it will require drastic measures in the way of reduction in players' stipends to put the minors on a paying basis.

"Take a team like the Baltimore, for instance. Our salary list is $5,000 a month—more than some big league clubs paid when the salary limit of $2,400 per man per season was in effect. And while salaries in the minor leagues have been advanced, there has not been a corresponding increase in patronage, consequently, the prospects of deficits at the close of every season are excellent. We tried last Winter to have a salary limit of about $3,000 a month per club established, but there was such a howl from owners and players that the plan had to be abandoned, and we are now paying salaries that are not justified by the receipts. I think the experience of this season will teach the minor league magnates a lesson they need and next Winter there will be a decided slicing of figures, when contracts for 1906 are sent out. Not only are the minors paying too large salaries, but some of the major league clubs are driving the financial question into the ground also."

SELBACH HITTING THE SPHERE HARD

What are the batting averages of the Champs? You cannot decide the question from the Boston morning newspapers, for none of them agrees with the others. Though their figures differ, all the papers put Selbach and Unglaub at the head of the list, though which of the two is ahead is impossible to tell.

But whether Collins or Parent or Ferris comes next is hard to decipher. Of course, the printed averages are unofficial and the discrepancy arises from the fact that the scorers do not agree on base hits and errors. One reporter will give a player a safe hit on a doubtful play, while another reporter will charge up an error to an opposing fielder.

Following are the averages of the four Boston morning newspapers, and you can take your choice or strike an average for yourself:

	Journal.	Post.	Globe.	Herald.
Selbach	.302	.288	.311	.303

CHAMPION TO RACE WALTHOUR

One of the best holiday cards of bike racing is scheduled at the Revere track next Saturday afternoon and evening, as the best pace followers in the business will be seen.

The afternoon matinee will be an hour race between Harry Caldwell, Jimmy Moran and Hugh MacLean, and some sensational speeding is sure to develop in any race where MacLean and Moran, the Chelsea rivals, are mixed up. Moran is better satisfied to get MacLean in a race of longer distance, and this is a chance to rub it in good and hard if he is ever going to do it.

A ten-mile match race behind motors betweeen Sammie Sulkins and Pat Logan has a lot of local interest.

Albert Champion and Bobbie Walthour will be seen in the evening in a ten-mile heat race, best two in three. It will be the first appearance of the Frenchman since his triumph on the Paris tracks, and all the fans like to see the French daredevil on the track, as they are sure to witness high-class sport.

CONN. LEAGUE RESULTS.

All games in this league scheduled for yesterday postponed; rain.

WINTHROP Y. C. IN MANY RACES

Few of the local yacht clubs can touch the Winthrop Y. C. for hospitality and the way it entertained the South Boston Y. C. and the Columbia Y. C., at the first interclub races will long be remembered with pleasure by the visiting yachtsmen.

With such a hustling regatta committee as W. A. Garrett, Walter Milton, Harry Pease, "Dewey" McKee and George Buchanan working with Commodore Allen and Secretary Charley Bird, this season promises to be a banner one for the club.

Every Saturday during the Summer there will be something doing by the club and the jolly yachtsmen will have plenty of sport racing their craft.

The program is June 17, class handicap; June 24, class handicap; July 1, class handicap; July 8, special race at Columbia Y. C., South Boston; July 15, class handicap; July 16, Sunday sail; July 22, open regatta; July 29, class handicap, outside course; August 5, special race at South Boston Y. FINE WORK OF INDIANS.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 13.—In a track meet here, Mt. Pleasant, a Carlisle school Indian, made a remarkable record. He won three events, doing 100 yards in 10 2-5 seconds and 440 yards in 50 4-5 seconds, and making a broad jump of 23 feet 9 inches. The latter is the best jump of the year by any college athlete.

N. E. LEAGUE RESULTS.

The mill, a ten-round affair, will take place at Battle Creek, Mich., on June 22.

FITZ-SCHRECK GO PROTESTED

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 13.—The change of date for the go between Fitzsimmons and Schreck from July 4 to July 3 was the result of a rising vote by the entire congregation of Iliff Methodist Church, objecting to the holding of the proposed fight.

Fitzsimmons started training at a Lagoon resort yesterday. Schreck arrives today and will train at Ogden.

NO CHANGE IN THE YALE BOATS

Special to the Boston American.

YALE QUARTERS, GALES FERRY, Ct., June 13.—Stormy weather and examinations in college work combined to cut the practice of the Yale crews to a minimum. The eight's morning paddle was interrupted by a heavy shower, which sent the men back to quarters thoroughly drenched, and in the afternoon the eight had a three-mile row, with the freshman crew, in the vicinity of the cove, up stream. There was no change in the order of the men in either boat.

RACE STARTS AUGUST 21.

The official circular for the ocean race of the Eastern Yacht Club, from Marblehead to Halifax, has been issued. This is the biggest yachting event of the year in American waters, next to the start of the transatlantic race.

The start will be Monday, August 21, at 10 a. m., off Marblehead Rock. Yachts of any club, of more than thirty feet waterline length, are invited to enter.

BILL REID AT FOOTBALL MEET

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The advisory board of the Intercollegiate Football Association held a protracted session at the Hotel Manhattan to discuss and pass upon changes in the game. After three hours and a half of discussion the only progress made was the passage of the rule to increase the penalty for coaching from the side lines from five to ten years.

The members present were Walter Camp, Yale; Paul J. Dashiel, Annapolis; A. A. Stagg, University of Chicago; J. C. Bell, University of Pennsylvania; Professor Fine, Princeton; Professor Dennis, Cornell; W. T. Reid, Harvard.

BAY STATE BOY MADE CAPTAIN

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Georgetown University baseball team upon its return from the northern trip elected Leon Martell of Weymouth, Mass., captain for next year's nine. Martell has played with the team two seasons. He has played in the field this season but is also a first-class catcher. He is also one of the heaviest batters on the team.

BRYN MAWR HAD CINCH.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Bryn Mawr had a walkover in the polo match with the Country Club, the score being 24 to 15¾. The contest was the first annual match of the year for the Goughacres cup, presented by B. Frank Clyde.

Floyd of Manchester, came down to the track with his automobile, and after a show mile took these trainers in and did the mile in 1:49¾. "Uncle Jack" said he was satisfied; he has been trying for years to beat two minutes.

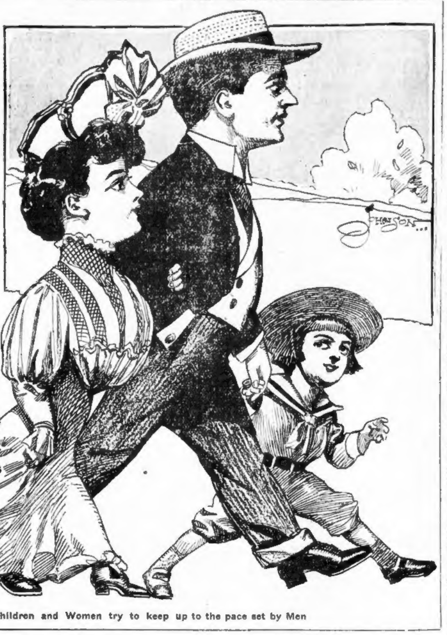
DO MEN INFLUENCE WOMEN MORE THAN WOMEN INFLUENCE MEN?

By Dorothy Dix

DOROTHY DIX CONCLUDES THAT AS MEN FIX STANDARDS OF MORALS FOR WOMEN TO LIVE UP TO, AND AS WOMEN ALWAYS CATER TO THE LIKINGS OF MEN, THEREFORE WOMEN HAVE MUCH LESS INFLUENCE OVER MEN THAN MEN HAVE OVER WOMEN



Children and Women try to keep up to the pace set by Men

FOR some reason that nobody ever tried to explain women are popularly supposed to have a monopoly on influence.

We hear a great deal about woman's sacred influence, but never about a man's.

We are never weary of prating about a wife's influence over a husband, but nobody ever says a word about the husband's influence over a wife.

We sentimentalize by the yard over a mother's influence, but we are silent as the grave about a father's influence.

Thousands of columns are printed in the newspapers every year about woman's influence in the home, but not a paragraph about man's influence is there.

One would think that influence was a distinctive feminine attribute, such as long hair or an eighteen inch waist, and the ability to influence people an [illegible] feminine talent, like the knack of [illegible] able to pass a woman on the street and tell, without looking at her, everything she had on and what it cost.

Is it really true that woman influences man more than he does her? Is it a fact that woman's influence molds the home and society?

Women believe that their influence is paramount in the world, and the cleverest thing and the most selfish thing that men have ever done is to foster this delusion, for thereby they have given women the shadow while they took the substance and have washed their hands of all responsibility when affairs went wrong.

"You must not vote, for if you do you will lose your sweet womanly influence," men have said to her, and woman has been content not to vote, forgetting that the influence that is backed up by the ability to do things gains, and does not lose, in power.

Thousands of women have wrecked their lives by marrying drunkards, because they believed that a wife's influence was a sort of Keeley Cure that would keep a man from ever thirsting for a high ball again.

Thousands of broken hearted women are waiting and watching for a mother's holy influence to somehow get in its work, and bring back to them the prodigal sons and daughters who have disgraced them and deserted them.

Millions of devout and credulous women have been bringing woman's sacred influence to bear for, lo, these many years upon the drink question and the social purity question, and yet intemperance and vice never flaunted themselves as openly and shamelessly as they do to-day.

In the meantime man has kept suspiciously silent. He never talks about his influence over woman, or his influence in the home, or his influence as a reformer.

But he does things, and the humor of the situation lies in the fact that while women talk about influencing men, men mold women as if they were clay in the hands of the potter.

A man does not marry a drunkard and disreputable woman thinking that a husband's influence will reform her. He refuses to marry any woman who has not a blameless character, and that one thing has kept women, as a sex, free from vice.

There are just as many women of immoral tendencies, just as many women with a craving for intoxicants, just as many with the gambling mania as there are men—for women are the daughters of their fathers and inherit their weaknesses—but the influence of man over woman has been strong enough to make her control herself and go straight.

Women's influence over men has never yet been strong enough to do this, and until it does women are not entitled to brag about their particular brand of moral suasion.

It is also man's influence, and not woman's, that keeps the home on a high plane. No matter what he may do himself, he has drawn up an ideal code of morals for the regulation of his home, and he sees that his wife follows them, or else he hauls her into the divorce court.

Woman's influence has never been strong enough over men to even keep them at home of an evening.

As far as the children are concerned, the most casual observation will show anybody that the father has ten times as much influence as the mother. The children defer to his opinion more than they do to their mother's, because they know that he has a wider knowledge of the world.

They obey him better, because he has the voice and habit of authority. They have more respect for him, because he is not as easily "worked" as their mother.

It is unfortunately too true that the majority of fathers do not exercise their influence over their children to control them and to raise them up into being decent, law abiding men and women—which is the reason that so many poor, pathetic mothers have to depend on the weak, intangible power of a mother's influence to save their wayward children.

There is no room for discussion of which sex has the greater influence in moral questions. Men have already shown that they have the ability to institute any kind of reform they desire.

When they get ready to abolish drunkenness, and gambling, and vice generally, they will do in one minute what all the sacred influence of woman has never begun to do, and couldn't do, in all eternity of time.

Indeed, the influence of woman, taking it by and large, upon the masculine sex is so little, when compared with man's influence upon woman as a sex, that it is scarcely worth considering. The wonder is that the myth of woman's influence should ever have gained such currency.

New Rules to Make All Beautiful

By Annette Bradshaw

Noted American Artist and Writer Says Care Is the Magic Key to Comeliness for All

"BEAUTY is only skin deep," says the old adage, but that is deep enough for most people. And whereas the women of yesterday were wont to bemoan its fleeting nature, the women of to-day, knowing that beauty is skin deep, and profiting by that knowledge, have set themselves to make that skin as nearly perfect as possible and to preserve their beauty for many years, even in this rush of city life and modern society.

There is in New York one man who contributes more lasting benefit for woman's beauty than anyone else. A physician and surgeon graduating with honors, he has since devoted his life to the study of the skin, till now he stands pre-eminent.

From all over the world patients come to this great specialist, and after they have returned to their homes, perhaps in Paris or San Francisco, their remedies are sent regularly from New York, for the doctor will not trust his prescriptions to unknown druggists.

Although the desire for a good complexion is not confined to the rich, all are, unfortunately, not able to consult a specialist in regard to that important matter. For the benefit of those who really wish to acquire a good complexion by sensible methods, and are willing to go to some pains for it, the doctor has been induced to give some advice, which will be published in a series of articles in this paper.

These directions will all be of a general nature, sufficient for the care of any ordinary skin; for special cases, where there is any serious trouble, the advice of a specialist must be sought, as people are apt to do themselves serious injury by "doctoring" or neglecting cases which they do not understand.

In skin diseases it is especially noticeable how people will try to deceive themselves. As these diseases do not immediately threaten life, they will not seek professional help, but will commence treating themselves. Sometimes they will use prescriptions which have been made up for friends whose skins may be of a character altogether different from theirs; but with them that carries no weight. In their minds skin is only skin, an elastic covering for the body—nothing more nor less.

Then they will commence spending money on quack concerns, until sometimes they have spent hundreds of dollars before, as a last resort, a specialist is consulted. Besides the money that might have been saved by this in the beginning, permanent injury has often been done to the skin.

When a patient seeks the doctor's aid, to have her complexion beautified or preserved, he gains all the information he can about her manner of living, whether she leads an active or an indolent life, keeps late hours, or drinks more than she should.

Concerning this last, patients are usually untruthful, social customs often causing them to drink more than they like to admit. In that case the doctor must depend on himself to find out the truth.

The ordinary day of the average society woman begins rather late in the morning, the festivities of the night before having kept her up until the small hours. She has her breakfast in bed, and then looks over her letters, which her secretary brings her.

While in the hands of her hairdresser, she dictates the necessary answers and is then dressed and whirled off, usually to the dressmaker's.

These visits, of course, occur very frequently, as she only wears one gown a few times and so must be continually buying new ones. From there she will go perhaps to look at some furs or is carried in her auto to keep some engagement, then for lunch at some fashionable restaurant. Here she remains for some time in close rooms, filled with air that has already been breathed, eats rich foods and usually drinks.

When the races are on she may attend them, or else a lecture or a concert. By 4 o'clock she must be at home to freshen herself up and dress again to attend some reception, game of bridge whist or tea.

From these she rushes home again to dress for dinner, which occurs at 7:30 or 8 p. m., and seldom does a family dine alone. During the dinner there is again more or less drinking, and then comes the evening, filled with theatres, the opera or balls, with late suppers and more drinking.

Toward morning she goes to bed. This happens day after day, and a woman will very quickly fall off in looks if care is not taken.

One very handsome young society matron, who came here from the South a few years ago, soon found that the pace she was keeping up was beginning to tell on her beauty. She placed herself in the doctor's hands, and by constant attention to his prescriptions is now handsomer than ever, and he says is "the most beautiful woman in New York to-day."

The doctor's whole fundamental theory is of the devastating germ. No matter how well one may be within, one must keep the skin free from germs of disease, for it is an exceptionally healthy skin that can throw off all objectionable germs unassisted. Skin diseases, he holds, do not come from the blood, but are caused by microbes which float around in the air.

Of course, a healthy person stands a better chance of throwing off the germs, yet many an otherwise healthy person may have a weak skin that is easily affected by disease. Such a skin may be an inheritance, just like a weak heart, a weak stomach, or any other organ; for the skin is an organ, and a very important one. It has its functions like any other, and is not merely a tissue, the sole duty of which is to cover the body.

It is very susceptible to outside influence, and, as it is exposed so much more than any other organ, it needs a great deal of care to keep it well and pleasant to look upon.

Therefore, the series of articles telling just how to do this should be carefully read and kept for reference by every woman who reads this page.

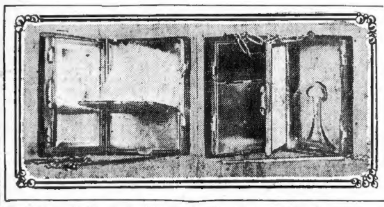
How to Spend the Saturday Half-Holiday

Five Vanity Boxes Will Be Given by the Boston American for the Five Best Ideas

THE Vanity Box is Dame Fashion's latest caprice for women.

Write the Editor of the Woman's Page your idea of the best way for women to spend the Saturday half-holiday and you may get a Vanity Box.

Five Vanity Boxes will be given for the five best answers received before midnight Saturday, June 17. Do not write over 150 words.



Two Views of One of the Five Vanity Boxes for the Five Best Letters on the Saturday Half-Holiday.

EVERY girl would like to own a vanity box.

The BOSTON AMERICAN would like to know the best way for women to spend the Saturday half-holiday.

Now, the BOSTON AMERICAN has just bought five handsome gun-metal vanity boxes, as dainty as they make them, in the newest shape, turquoise studded and fastened by a dainty bar, which is in reality a pencil. They have all necessary compartments, and have a mirror, powder puff and all the rest.

And these five vanity boxes will be given as prizes to the five women writing the five best letters on the way to make the best use of the half-day respite from work, which comes at the end of every week through the Summer months.

The BOSTON AMERICAN wants to know how Boston women spend their half-holiday.

How do they get the most pleasure and benefit from it?

One woman's plans may help another woman to solve the problem.

Anyway, everyone will be interested in learning what her sisters do with their half-day.

Workers can't work, shoppers can't shop, and in view of this what do they do?

Write the editor of the Woman's Page about 150 words and tell us about it.

Of course if you are an up-to-date woman you know what a vanity box is.

It is the latest caprice of Dame Fashion.

A vanity box is a receptacle for powder and powder puff, calling cards, car fare and postage stamps, and contains a mirror which makes the question anent the angle of milady's hat unnecessary. It is worn as a chatelaine or suspended about the neck by a chain.

The women who own one are happy.

The others are envious.

Every woman wants one.

Five women can have their wish gratified.

You may be one of the five lucky ones.

NEW EGG TEST

THE purchaser of an egg has no ready guide by which he may judge of its age; and, as the term "new-laid," as employed commercially, has such elasticity that it may mean anything from a few days to many weeks, he is always at a disadvantage. A new and simple test has, however, been discovered by which the age of even a shop egg can be correctly gauged, the method being based upon its floating powers in brine.

Every one knows that at the end of an egg there is an air space, and that while this is represented by a mere dimple in a really fresh specimen, the space increases with age, and that extremity of the egg naturally becomes more and more buoyant.

A perfectly fresh egg will assume a horizontal position in the brine; when it is from three to five days old the end tips up and its long axis forms an angle of twenty degrees; at eight days old it will assume an angle of forty-five degrees, at fourteen days sixty degrees, at three weeks seventy-five degrees, and when a month old it will stand vertically upon its pointed end. A scale is attached to the glass vessel in which the brine is held, so that the angle assumed by the floating egg can be easily read off.

"WILL you guarantee," asked Darch, "that if I agree to your preposterous terms you will humble and crush Armstrong?"

"Certainly."

"And make Mary Armstrong my wife?"

"Most certainly. I think I clearly understand your position and your wishes."

"Then," said Morley Darch, with a sudden oath, "I agree. What else can I do?"

Fergus Braine's little agate eyes lit up.

"Good!" he ejaculated. "Now we come to business. Let me know everything as minutely as possible. Place yourself entirely in my hands and implicitly follow out my advice. In the first place, however, let me remind you of one very important thing. Armstrong is defiant."

"I told you so."

"Yes, but he is defiant to a very extraordinary extent."

"How do you know?"

"I have seen him," answered Braine, blandly. "I saw him on board the Seafoam this morning. As a matter of fact, he wired to me almost at the same time as you did."

"For what purpose?"

"To free him from you."

Darch went very white.

"So that is his game, is it? By Jove! that doesn't look defiant!"

"But, for all that, he is. He is prepared to lose everything—name, honor, wealth—rather than give his daughter to you. Personally," added Mr. Braine, "I can almost sympathize with him. However, that is neither here nor there. Anyhow, Armstrong defies you. He is prepared to meet anything and everything—and, by Jove! he looks as if he means it!"

"We will soon see," said Darch, grimly. "He is merely talking of possibilities now, and probably comforting himself with the hope and reflection that I shall never put my threat into execution. Well, he shall soon see. By Heaven, he will think differently when he comes face to face with the reality! Yes, we shall soon see!"

CHAPTER CVI.

Out of the World.

THE Seafoam remained at Monaco for another week. During that time Captain Dick Menzies saw quite a lot of Mary Armstrong. In fact, they were always together whenever the opportunity occurred.

People began to talk and to smile. Mary was forgetting her great trouble, and they were glad. Menzies was a popular young man; everybody liked him. What could be more fitting than that Mary and Dick Menzies should fall in love with each other?

Armstrong was pleased, too, for he observed the course of events. Elizabeth was overjoyed, more, as a matter of fact, at the change she saw in her daughter than at any thought of her marrying the young soldier.

Judith Mort observed them, too, and her observation only went to confirm her original opinion. She duly reported to Darch, who was staying at Monte Carlo, and who saw her every day.

"Wait," was all he said, and he smiled an ugly, sinister smile. "Only wait. You will see great things."

"You seem very confident," she said.

"I am," he replied. "It is only a question of days."

That was on the following Friday.

"But," she said, "we are leaving for Naples to-morrow or Monday."

"Well," he answered, "it is quite possible that I shall be going to Naples about that time."

"But what are you going to do?"

"Never mind, chere Judith. You won't have long to wait." He smiled mysteriously, but there was a supreme confidence in his manner.

"Where is Braine?"

"Oh, he's still down here. He's taking a holiday. He's staying at the Hotel de Paris. Surely you see him about?"

"No," she said, "I have not met him, and, what is more, I do not want to. But are you sure he is acting for you?"

"As sure as one can be about anything in connection with Mr. Fergus Braine."

"Well," she answered, "all I can say is that he hasn't been on board the Seafoam yet?"

"Why Should He?

Braine need never have any communication with the Seafoam, or any one on board, for the matter of that."

"You are most mysterious, Morley. I wish you'd tell me what you mean to do. I am so completely in the dark."

"As a matter of fact," answered Darch, "I am simply awaiting an opportunity. It is bound to come sooner or later. Meantime, events are progressing at home. Probably Armstrong is ignorant of the fact that already his soap sales are decreasing rapidly and that his affairs generally are in a very parlous state; but, nevertheless, that is the case."

"You are horrible!" exclaimed Judith. "I don't think I should like you for an enemy."

"There is no reason why you should ever have me for anything but a very faithful friend," said Morley Darch, with a bland smile.

As for Armstrong, he was much more at his ease. He had heard nothing of or from Morley Darch. He had, however, written and received several letters from Fergus Braine.

"You can rely on me," said Braine. "Trust me implicitly. You have nothing to fear from M. D. Pay no attention to anything he says, writes or does. Look to me."

Armstrong did so, and incidentally drew several large checks in favor of Mr. Fergus Braine, which necessitated his communicating with his New York bankers. Even millionaires do not carry $500,000 about in their pockets or their current banking accounts.

And as for Mr. Fergus Braine, he was very well content with himself. To run with the hare and hunt with the hounds was always to his taste. That was precisely what he was doing now. That it was a temporary game no one knew better than himself, and that it must soon end he knew also. But for the time being he was content, and his bank account grew marvellously.

He was of a somewhat satiric frame of mind. That enabled him to blandly tell Armstrong that he might rely implicitly on him, and that, as far as Morley Darch was concerned, he had nothing to fear, while at the same time he told Morley Darch to trust him and his methods, and that in a very short time Armstrong should be brought to his senses, and Mary be his wife.

That both men did exactly what he suggested is perhaps the greatest compliment ever paid to the consummate skill of this extraordinary genius.

If anything, Darch was the most unquestioning client. He placed an unwavering trust in Fergus Braine. He was, it is true, paying the man a vast fortune for his services, and, consequently, found it impossible to imagine that he would not serve him faithfully. But, at the same time,

Darch Was Impatient.

Nothing had happened. He had not seen Mary; he had heard nothing of or from her, or of or from Armstrong save from his spy Judith Mort. And the Seafoam was sailing for Naples in a few hours.

He called on Braine at his hotel on the Friday night. Braine was dressing for dinner, and saw his client in his private sitting-room.

"Look here, Braine," said Darch, "the yacht is leaving to-morrow or next day. What have you done?"

"Many things," answered Braine.

"But that's all very well. You are always talking vaguely, generally, in the air, as it were. I want practical results. I want the matter settled one way or another immediately. Do you understand?"

"The matter is practically settled," said Braine.

"I am sorry, but I fail to follow you," retorted Darch irritably. "You see, I happen to be kept very well and fully posted in the affairs and doings of the people on board the Seafoam. All I hear is that Armstrong is living his ordinary life, everything is going well, and—well, Miss Armstrong is rapidly falling in love with a young army officer—Captain Menzies by name. That sort of thing can't be called satisfactory. When are you going to strike?"

TO BE CONTINUED.

TO KEEP GLOVES FRESH

THE way kid gloves are put on when new has a good deal to do with their durability. The gloves should first be stretched gently with stretchers; it should then be turned down below the buttons and the fingers worked on quite to the end.

Not until the fingers are in should the thumb be introduced. Gloves which do not go on easily or stretch properly should either be warmed gently before the fire or wrapped in a damp towel for a few minutes. Either of these methods will be found effective.

To keep kid gloves in good condition they should be placed in some perfectly dry and airtight bottle or tin box.

When gloves are taken off they should never be folded one inside the other.

They should be drawn off carefully, smoothed lengthwise until they are in the same shape as when on the hand and then laid away flat in a dry place.

People who are really particular sometimes stuff the finger tips with cotton wool when the gloves are not in use.

Gloves which are rolled together after being taken off will soon get shabby.

A STYE IN THE EYE

A STYE is in reality a little abscess which forms at the margin of the eyelid from inflammation of the glands or follicles.

It is met with chiefly in delicate children, but occurs sometimes in adults where there is a general depression of the health.

The best plan is to bathe the eye frequently with hot water and to apply from time to time a bread and water poultice.

After a time the abscess comes to a head and bursts and there is an end of it.

A succession of styes may be taken as an indication that a thorough course of tonic treatment is necessary, and such remedies as cod liver oil and iron and quinine should be taken frequently.

A stye is never dangerous, but it is painful while it lasts.

AID TO THE LOVELORN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady of twenty years, and have kept company with a gentleman for the past three years whom I consider in good circumstances and have grown to love. He told me that he loved me also, but says that he doesn't think that he would ever marry me, as there is too much difference in our ages.

Now, Miss Fairfax, as for myself, I like a gentleman considerably older than I am, one who is settled in his ways, likes his home and has a very good education, for I am a quiet girl and very settled for my age, and do not care for running about. I feel that I would be perfectly happy with him, and do not know what to do. He has told me that he didn't care to have me look for someone else, and doesn't know what to do, as he doesn't want to make me unhappy. Kindly advise me what to do.

M. K.

I THINK it is only a matter of time before your difficulties settle themselves. If he sees you care for him, and he cares for you, he will not be able to resist asking you to marry him. You do not mention his age, so I am rather in the dark in advising you. I hope it will all come right, and that you will be very happy. The next time the subject comes up you might say to him just what you have said to me. Perhaps that will encourage him to come to the point.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady of nineteen years and ask your opinion regarding my matrimonial problem.

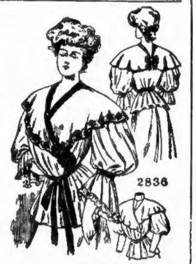
Have been receiving the attentions of a worthy young gentleman, whom I consider in very good circumstances, and have grown to love him. He has asked me to share fortunes with him, and, with the consent of my parents, I have agreed. Now comes the difficult part of my affairs. If we wed I am to vacate my city home and drop my present society, to retire into a life in the country, which place is far from my own city, as well as any other town of a fair size. He has positively refused to remain in the city, and, as I do not wish to embark so soon into a dull country life, will you kindly suggest a remedy for two love-sick people who are unable to reach an agreement in the matter.

CARRIE R.

IF you really love him, you will be quite willing to live wherever his business calls him. You cannot expect him to change his business merely because you don't want to live in the country. If you cannot be happy living where he can make a home for you, you had better give him up. Be sensible, and do not ask him to give up his place of living. When a girl marries she is supposed to give up her old way of living and cling to her husband.

Hearst's Boston American Pattern

A Fetching Negligee



No. 2,836—Here is shown another one of those attractive boudoir jackets that have a picturesque daintiness without being in the least expensive or difficult to fashion. The broad ripple collar forms a graceful drapery, while the black velvet ribbon outlining the V neck, defining the waist and accented by jaunty rosettes in front and back, renders this garment one of individual charm. A robin's-egg-blue challis or silk would make this both dainty and serviceable. For a medium size this matinee requires 4½ yards of material 36 inches wide.

Pattern No. 2,836, five sizes, from 32 to 40 inches bust.

Send 10 cents to obtain this pattern, post-paid, and the size, name and address to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass.

GLASS EYE HAS GIVEN SIGHT TO BLIND MAN

Surgeon Inserts Artificial Lens and Now Patient Can See Well.

WAS BLIND FROM BIRTH

NEW YORK, June 13.—A remarkable surgical operation at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary has demonstrated that the lens of the human eye can be removed and glasses fitted in its place that will focus the light on the retina as correctly as the original lens provided by nature.

The patient was Clarence Coshburn of No. 410 St. Nicholas avenue. The operation was performed Monday, but with the usual secrecy observed at such institutions the facts were kept from the public. Mr. Coshburn is twenty-seven years old.

The bandages have now been removed, and Coshburn for the first time in his life saw with sufficient distinctness to distinguish objects. He saw the daylight streaming through the windows and the physicians and hospital attendants hovering about his bed. Realizing that science had restored his sight, he gave vent to a cry of joy, which made known to the surgeons that their efforts had been successful.

Coshburn was born practically blind, and the cataract, which was accompanied by other complications, grew as he reached manhood, until sunlight was barely distinguishable. He had expected to remain blind until the grave closed over him, but Dr. William Holzapfel of No. 174 West Eighty-seventh street became interested in his case through Miss Ethel Taylor of No. 21 Manhattan avenue and agreed to perform an operation.

The afflicted young man had been cared for since childhood by his brother Henry, who, until very recently, was janitor of the apartment in which the Taylors lived. Seeing Coshburn groping about the building some weeks ago, Miss Taylor inquired as to his condition.

"I have been almost blind all my life, and the doctors tell me that I will never be any better," Coshburn replied.

Her pity being aroused, Miss Taylor communicated with Dr. Holzapfel, with the result that the surgeon sent Coshburn to the eye and ear infirmary. The operation is declared to have been most delicate.

As explained by one of the hospital surgeons, the first stages of the disease are usually found in children's eyes, where sight is hindered by an opaqueness of the lens of the eyeball. This is usually treated by making an incision in the iris and cleansing the lens with a liquid. In the advanced stage the opaqueness has had the effect of making the lens perfectly hard, and it can be removed from the eyeball and a glass of equal strength placed before the eye. Coshburn's case was neither of these. Both lenses had become opaque, but neither of them had solidified sufficiently to permit of their being removed with ease.

Dr. Holzapfel, in the presence of many of the most prominent specialists of New York, made a slit about one-sixteenth of an inch wide in the iris or colored part of the eye. Then, with a delicately pointed knife, he cut all around the tissue which holds the lens in position and removed it.

After the operation the eyes were bandaged and allowed to heal. Yesterday a glass of proper focus was fitted to the right eye, with the result that ultimate success is assured. Dr. Holzapfel is confident that when a glass lens is fitted to the left eye Mr. Coshburn will be able to see almost as well as a person with ordinary eyesight.

WOMAN IN RED, SHIP MYSTERY

Wore Mask on the Majestic and Puzzled Passengers Did Not See Her Face.

NEW YORK, June 13.—A silent girl in a red mask, a red gown, red stockings, red French heeled boots and red coat proved a mystery on the voyage of the Majestic, which has just arrived.

Even at dinner and during her solitary promenades the unknown woman wore her bal masque costume. The only persons to whom she spoke were her maid and her table steward.

The lower portion of her face, the only portion visible, is pale.

The woman in red was booked on the saloon list of the Majestic as "Madame Rouge Domino," but when she came up to give her declaration the acting Deputy Collector told her he must have her name, and it is on record in the archives of the Barge Office.

There was an angry scene between the girl and her manager and the United States Immigration boarding officer, who insisted that he must see her face and know her real name and intentions, because he was responsible equally for second cabin and saloon passengers. He did not wish to be ungallant, but if it should prove necessary he would tear the mask from her face.

The girl screamed, the manager protested, and the trio entered a room and the veiled woman disclosed her face to the inspector. She was whisked away in a red automobile as soon as she had reached the pier. M. A. Luescher and Samuel Weller of the New York Roof Garden management met the woman in red.

The woman is a Russian who ran away from home and whose relatives are opposed to her going upon the stage. Upon one side of the domino is a golden coronet.

She wanted to go to the St. Regis, but the landlord would not take her as a guest because she would not give her right name or remove her mask. She found lodging at the Victoria.

POLICEMEN HAD 40,000 BUGS

NEW YORK, June 13.—"Look out! They'll eat you alive!" yelled Harry Hanson, of Boston, in a billiard room at No. 129 West Thirty-eighth street, to a crowd of friends, as he dropped his cue and rushed for a window.

"What's the matter?" cried a number of men, frightened at Hanson's warning.

"Didn't you see them?" Hanson asked. "See, there they come! One, two, three, four—Gee, 40,000 policemen, each leading a cockroach by a chain. Look out!" and with a yell of fright he made another leap for the window.

Friends held him until the ambulance arrived and took Hanson to Bellevue Hospital, where he was detained in the insane ward. Too much cocaine drove him insane. He was later removed from the hospital to the West Thirtieth street police station.

HURLOCK AWAITS LEGACY TO GIVE 'SKIDOO' TO FARM

BUCKLEY PHOTO
MR AND MRS HARRY HURLOCK

HEIR TO ENGLISH FORTUNE AND HIS WIFE.

Lawyers Tell Him It Will Be at Least $50,000, and May Reach $500,000.

Special to the Boston American.

GREAT BARRINGTON, June 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hurlock are waiting in pleasant anticipation for the first instalment of the legacy left them by Hurlock's grandfather, which Hurlock's lawyers tell him may run up to $500,000. Hurlock is the man who declared, when he was informed of the legacy:

"I shall give the merry skidoo to farm living as I have known it. A stone crusher is the only thing that could prosper on this stretch of rocks that Berkshire people call a farm."

Hurlock has just returned from a trip to Bridgeport, Conn., where he went to get himself identified as Harry Hurlock, grandson of John Bowborstock, of London, Eng., the latter being the grandfather who left the money.

Speaking of the amount of the legacy, Hurlock said to-day:

"The lawyers have writen me that my share will amount to $50,000 at least, and may run up to ten times that figure. I have nearly cracked my brain trying to recall my grandfather. He was my mother's father. He objected to her marriage. She came to this country, and never told us children about her father, on account of the estrangement which then existed. I was a little 'tad' at the time my folks left the old country, and before I had much chance to learn about my grandparents my father and mother both died.

"For forty years I've tried to get a living out of this farm, and the wrench has nearly broken my back. Now I will straighten up a bit. I will get some chap to do the farm work. I will make a darn good boss, I guess, for I know what the work is.

"Mrs. Hurlock has wished for silks and satins, and she is going to have them now. She and I are going to take it easy."

BABY MAY STOP CITY BUSINESS

CHICAGO, June 13.—A baby may invalidate the city seal of Chicago and render illegal the official documents to which it has been attached since the seal was altered by city ordinance in April.

The ordinance provides for "an infant sleeping in a shell" as the design for the seal, and the whole question hinges on the position of the infant and the construction of the word "sleeping." The authorities have discovered that the infant is sitting upright with legs crossed and dangling. The question is, can a babe sleep in such a position, and it has driven Comptroller McGann to seek the advice of Corporation Counsel Tolman.

ONE OF VERMONT'S RICHEST WOMEN DIES

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 13.—Mrs. Arahanna R. Wells, widow of Major-General William Wells and one of the richest women in Vermont, is dead at her home here. Death was caused by heart disease. Mrs. Wells was born in Fitchburg, Mass., and was in her sixtieth year. Her maiden name was Richardson.

CANFIELD SELLS NEWPORT 'CLUB'

NEWPORT, R. I., June 13.—Richard A. Canfield's famous gambling house, long known as the Nautilus Club, has been sold by Canfield to his former manager, David W. Bucklin, and George S. Roe for "$1 and other considerations." Canfield has gone out of business here altogether.

Many fortunes have changed hands in this famous gambling house. Canfield bought it five years ago from Frederick A. Abell. The place has been quietly conducted and has been considered a part of the Summer life here. There has never been a complaint registered against the resort, excepting one made by a long-titled foreigner who lost a large sum. He was repaid what he lost and told to keep out of the place as long as it runs.

FINED $200 FOR HIRING BOSTON MAN

SYDNEY, N. S., June 13.—The Cape Breton Electric Company has been fined $200 for violation of the contract labor law in having made a contract with A. F. Townsend of Boston and bringing him here as superintendent of its railroad.

Shows at Theatre and Park

FADETTES AND STRONG BILL AT KEITH'S

Despite the rain and the circus, Keith's Theatre was crowded last night. When the ever-popular Fadettes came on for their concert at 7:30 o'clock there was hardly a vacant seat.

The woman's orchestra is the headliner for the Summer season at this theatre, and the playing can hardly be improved upon. The programme this week, interspersed as it is with popular numbers, is one of the best that this organization has given. The musical menu for the week is as follows:

1. March, "Through Night to Light" .... Laukien
2. Overture, "Oberon" .... Von Weber
3. "Parade of the Little Lead Soldiers" .... Pierne
4. Airs from "The Fortune Teller" Herbert
5. "Down South" .... Myddleton
6. "Whispering of the Flowers" .... Von Blon
7. Descriptive, "The Cavalry Charge" Luders

Synopsis—Dawn before the battle; approach of the infantry; cannonading begins; the battle rages; cavalry in hot pursuit; infantry is routed and battle is over.

This is the farewell week of McIntyre and Heath. They give their old sketch, "The Man from Montana," which ranks as a blackface classic. There is more than mere foolery in the work of these two men, who have aroused and convulsed theatregoers for many years. To those who know the Southern negro, he is a natural-born comedian, and the black-face characters that McIntyre and Heath have introduced to the vaudeville stage have been absolutely true to Southern darky nature.

There are lots of other good things on this week's bill. Louis Wesley, late of comic opera, tries to sing, but cannot. But his dancing is startling in these days when one supposes that every dance step possible has been invented and worn out. The Avolos, two men and two women, play xylophones, not merely pound them. This is a freak musical act that is really musical.

Paul Barnes talks a bit and sings some. His voice is friendly with the key very often during his songs, his line of talk, while a trifle jerky, is funny, and he does not wear out his welcome. Nowadays bicycle acts are usually placed on the program before the real show begins, and Paulton and Dooley's hit last night was unexpected, but well deserved. The biograph has a number of new views that are interesting.

'PRINCE OF PILSEN'S' 200TH TIME HERE

"The Prince of Pilsen" was given for the 200th time in Boston at the Tremont Theatre last night and attractive souvenirs were distributed to the ladies who attended the performance. Of course there was a large audience and it was an enthusiastic one as well. "The Prince" seems to grow mellower as it grows older and its melodies and prettp stage pictures become more attractive the oftener they are heard and seen. It is one of the most popular of all the Pixley and Luder's operas, and will undoubtedly continue to crowd the Tremont as long as it stays here.

CLEVER DANCER STILL AT LYCEUM

The Summer stock company at the Lyceum began its fourth week yesterday with the presentation of another entertaining burlesque, in which the various members of the company appeared to good advantage Ethel Amerita Kelley, the clever little dancer, began her second week and again made a hit. Among the newcomers in the bill are Mackie and Walker, authors and originators; Ward and Raymond, dancers; Castle and Cogan, acrobatic roller skate performers, and Fisher and Clark, in a rough knockabout sketch.

ATHLETIC SHOW AT AUSTIN & STONE'S

The show this week at Austin & Stone's Museum is one of the most novel that has ever been offered at this place of amusement, and drew big audiences all day long yesterday, and sent them home well pleased with their entertainment. The show is a sort of physical culture congress, and introduces a number of well-known athletes in poses and in exhibitions of strength, including wrestling, boxing and bag punching. Among those who appear are Otis Lambert, Young Sandow, Herr Jacobs, De Faut and Leavitt, Richard and Curley, Partington and Lynch and Riley and White. Then there are many other features, and the vaudeville show in the theatre is a good one.

MANY ATTRACTIONS AT PARAGON PARK

Although the weather both Sunday and yesterday was most unfavorable there was a large attendance both days at the new Paragon Park at Nantasket Beach, and the evening electrical display was greatly admired. The free open-air circus is one of the big features. The bill this week includes the Flying Dunbars, trapeze performers; Clayton, Jenkins and Jasper, acrobatic laughmakers, and the Baker family, trick bicyclists and comedians. In addition, there are thirty separate and distinct shows, including the Johnstown Flood, Colonel Kennedy's Wild West Congress, Mysterious Asia, with its dancing girls direct from the St. Louis Fair; the foolish house; fair Japan, with its Geisha girls; slip the skip, Katzenjammer castle, trip to the North Pole, Temple of Mirth, the sensational circular swing, Klondike, figure 8 roller coaster, haunted swing and the Ferris wheel. Martinaud's Band gives concerts afternoon and evening. The last boat now goes up to Boston at 10:40.

POINT OF PINES TO OPEN SATURDAY

There will be but little difference between the special openings of the Point of Pines, June 17, 18 and 25, and the regular season, which begins July 1. Practically everything at the park will be completed for the 17th of June, and the bill of free attractions will be as good as at any time during the season. The electrical work is now all finished, and the 20,000 lights will be tested to insure perfect working order a day or so before the oepning. The landscape gardeners have so altered and beautified the grounds that they would hardly be recognized as the same as last year. It is probably well known by this time and the management intend to make Point of Pines the great park of free attractions.

SEASON NOW OPENS AT REVERE BEACH

Time was, and not so very long ago either, when threatening or rainy weather meant no people at Revere Beach. That this has changed was indicated by the crowds that went to that resort Sunday and yesterday. The reason for this change is plain to those who have followed the development of the Metropolitan Park Commission's plant at Revere. Although the structures that housed the first amusement enterprises at the beach five or six years ago were of cheap and flimsy construction, the shows and diversions at the beach to-day are all contained in substantial and safe buildings.

CASTLE SQUARE SUMMER STOCK OPENS SEASON

As the opening attraction of the Summer season "The Senator" was presented by the Castle Square stock company yesterday.

An old play, which, however, has not been seen in Boston for some years, it still has power to please. As a picture of Washington political and diplomatic life the play has much to hold the attention of an audience.

Howell Hansel had the title role and he was supported by a company, some of them new to the Castle Square people, but quickly recognized as having Castle Square ability. Mr. Hansel remained well within the bounds of the strong character of Senator Hannibal Rivers.

Miss Mary Sanders, as Mrs. Hillary, a young widow, was quite a delight. No member of the Castle Square stock company has ever had a firmer hold on the affections of the theatregoers, and her reception last night almost embarrassed the little actress.

Frederick Murray, the new member of the company, gave a careful impersonation of Alexander Armstrong, secretary. James L. Seeley and Lindsay Morison were also in the cast, while William Humphrey closely followed Mr. Hansel in the character of the German count. Marie Falls, Florine Arnold, Lucille Stanford and Alice Riker are also in the cast.

E. L. Snader has the direction of the company for the Summer season.

NEW FEATURES IN "EARL AND THE GIRL"

"The Earl and the Girl" entered upon its fifth week at the Boston Theatre last evening to the usual accompaniments of laughter and applause. This show grows better right along. New material and fresh features are added every week and it is kept right up to date. There is much that is attractive about "The Earl and the Girl," and its features are pleasing to both eye and ear. The songs are tuneful and are well sung, while the stage pictures are both novel and pretty. The comedy is of the real laughter-compelling quality, and, altogether, a visit to "Earl and the Girl" is a good way to pass a Summer evening.

'BELLE OF NEW YORK' CROWDING EMPIRE

"The Belle of New York" began its second week at the Empire Theatre last night. The audience was large, and the applause bestowed upon the performance was ample proof that the elements which made this show popular in former days have lost none of their potency. Although it is really only a few years since "The Belle of New York" was first given here, it seems to be an age, and its revival was a happy thought. It is given in excellent style by the Empire Musical Comedy Company. Both principals and chorus sing well, and it is handsomely produced.

"LUCKY RANCH" AT THE BOWDOIN SQUARE

"Lucky Ranch" was given at the Bowdoin Square yesterday by the theatre stock company and immediately found favor. It is a sensational melodrama of the favorite old-time type and is filled from start to finish with exciting scenes and incidents. The scene of the play is laid in the Rocky Mountains and the story deals with mining life, which gives an opportunity for a strong and thrilling plot. It is well acted by the members of the company and the staging is effective.

NEW BURLESQUES AT PALACE THEATRE

Two new and laughable burlesques were presented by the stock company at the Palace Theatre yesterday which were accorded immediate favor. They are titled "The Wizard of Boston" and "The Electric Hotel," and are full of mirth-provoking incidents. The comedians of the company have firmly established themselves in popularity and the girls are attractive. The vaudeville portion of the show yesterday was one of the best in quality that has yet been offered here.

NORUMBEGA SEASON IN FULL SWING

The daily band concerts at Norumbega Park, which are an innovation this season, are a feature of the day's enjoyment, and are given from 12:30 until 8 p. m. Among the many attractions are the ferris wheel, the merry-go-round, the rifle range, the chalet of electrical wonders, the swingcourt, the restaurant, the casino, the boathouse and the zoological garden. The programme in the covered open air theatre this week is furnished by Brindamous, the king of handcuffs; the Italian trio, three men varying in height from 5½ feet to 6 feet 4 inches, in an excellent vocal programme ranging from grand opera in both English and Italian to the lighter music of the day; Seymour and Hill, acrobats; Clark and Florette, in a singing and dancing act; and Hacker and Lester, comedy bicyclists. The programme is closed by the komograph with new moving pictures.

LEXINGTON PARK TO OPEN JUNE 17

Lexington Park, the pine-scented grove on route of the Paul Revere trolley trip, will open for the season next Saturday, June 17. Numerous improvements and additions have been made in this forty-eight acres of upland forest and everything will be in perfect readiness for the opening. The zoological garden has received many new inmates, not the least important being the advent of the baby camel, now five weeks old. Lenna Claire Howe's women's orchestra has been secured for this season to furnish band concerts daily. Among the innovations for the enjoyment of patrons may be mentioned the hippodrome roller skating rink, the free toboggan slide, free library, free kitchen for the convenience of picnic parties, the new baseball field, the observation tower, which is 150 feet higher than Bunker Hill Monument; the casino, the swing court and merry-go-round.

CHAMPION EGG LAYER IS KILLED

Autopsy on Remarkable Rhode Island "Biddy" Proves Interesting.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 13.—The champion hen of the country, known as the "magazine hen," has gone the way of the goose that laid the golden egg.

The fowl belonged to Amie St. Germain of Jericho village. The State and national records were held by "Mrs. McNally's hen," which won fame throughout the country as having a laying capacity of one to three dozen eggs in a night. Trickery was alleged, but a guard, who held vigil all night, testified to the integrity of the hen and her product.

Mr. St. Germain's biddy began laying two eggs every other day, and kept it up until last week, when he decided to kill the hen and get rid of the attention the family received because of the overproduction of the bird. He requested Dr. Chagnon to make an autopsy, and this was the wonderful find that was made:

Two immense soft-shelled eggs, which weighed five and one-half and four and one-half ounces respectively; one double egg, weighing two and one-half ounces, the combined weight of the three being as great as that of a dozen ordinary eggs; also a dozen smaller eggs.

$500,000 GIFT FOR VASSAR.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 13.—A magnificent library building, costing $500,000, was presented to Vassar College by Mrs. Frederick Ferris Thompson, of New York.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JUNE 13, 1905.

Says Cunning John Chinaman: "I'll Hurt His Pocketbook"

The Boy Picking Up Burnt Matches

In a listless way the sleepy Chinese Government wants to tear down the wall which has kept Chinese labor out of this country.

American trust owners, IN A MOST ENERGETIC AND FEVERISH WAY, want to tear that wall down also.

The Chinese are not especially anxious to send their coolie laborers over here. They want plenty of cheap labor at home.

But they want permission for their merchants, students and men of means to travel here freely. And they would like our Chinese exclusion to cease. on general principles, because it hurts their feelings.

The big trusts that employ labor are anxious to get the Chinese in here—they couldn't imagine a better club to hold over the American workmen and the American labor union than the Chinese coolie labor club. Besides, they could make the Chinese work longer hours for little pay—a heavenly dream for big labor employers.

In the Philippines the Chinese are being brought in to work for Americans to some extent, by way of an entering wedge.

There is a strong effort to put them to work on the Panama Canal as employes of the United States Government—another entering wedge. The trusts mean to have Chinese labor if they can get it. The American workman should bear that in mind.

China herself has gone about the thing in a new and intelligent manner.

The Chinese mandarin is keen. He has not failed to realize that the government of this country just now IS A GOVERNMENT OF MONEY.

He says to himself that money in America can do whatever it wants to, that if he can hurt or frighten MONEY, he will get what he asks for.

For that reason the Chinese Government is arranging to exclude American manufacturers from the Chinese markets.

With admirable intelligence it attacks the sale in China of Mr. Rockefeller's Standard Oil.

They are only poor Chinese heathen, but they are under no delusion as to the influence of Standard Oil over the United States Government.

They know that all treaties must pass the Senate, and they know that the boss of the Senate, Aldrich, IS THE FATHER-IN-LAW OF YOUNG ROCKEFELLER.

China, cunningly and patiently, has started in to hurt the American rich man's pocket, and thus tear down the wall which keeps the Chinese out of America.

The Steel Trust will be made to suffer, and the American farmer will be hit—he also has a vote.

It would be very interesting to see what happens, and whether the Chinese laborer, kept out by the American mechanic thus far, will be welcomed to American jobs when "big American money" begins to squeal for the Chinese market.

Meanwhile, as a little illustration of what Chinese competition means, here is a picture of Chinese life in an article by Broughton Brandenberg in the Cosmopolitan Magazine for June.

An American in China was hiring laborers for freight handlers. As he examined and engaged the various men, he allowed his pipe to go out frequently, relighting it each time, and each time throwing away the half-burnt match.

When he happened to turn around he found a small Chinese boy with a pleased expression. The boy had picked up the half-burnt ends of eight or ten matches, and was waiting hopefully for the next. He wanted to take them home to his mother for kindling wood.

There is no doubt that the Chinaman has the instinct of economy; he is a wonderful saver. The American workmen who want to compete with this young Chinese collector of burnt matches will be interested to hear that there is a probability of the trusts forcing admission of the Chinese, because they do not want to lose the Chinese markets.

It would certainly be a very fair exchange—FOR THE TRUSTS—if they could arrange to send all their products to China and get in return a flood of cheap labor that would break up American unions and compel American citizens to work for whatever they could get.

The Thief and His Friends

Does Honesty Count in the Upper World or the Lower?

Three or four days ago a notorious burglar died in New York. He had been reared as an honest mechanic, but the wages of his occupation seemed not to be sufficient for him, and he began to follow systematically a criminal career. His robberies put him quite at the head of what his friends were pleased to call his "profession." Indeed, Jimmy Hope, when he robbed the Manhattan Bank of something over two million dollars, achieved next to the greatest exploit in his calling which history knows.

He spent many years in State prison; possibly one-third of his life. He died, not exactly in poverty, but at least poor. But he died in the arms of his wife, with two sons sitting by his bed, and his body was followed to the grave by some thirty carriages filled with friends.

The story of Jimmy Hope and that recently published of Adam Worth, cracksmen both, suggest a curious difference in moral and ethical standards. Both were thieves. Both were married men whose wives were devoted to them. Both had children who knew their occupation and yet admired them just as the child of an eminent director of a dubious corporation in Wall street admires his father. Both had friends who stood by them to the last, even to the grave. And yet, as we have said already, both of these men made their living by theft. And the wives and the sons and the friends knew it.

It seems hard to understand the friendship and love that men of this sort should inspire. One would think that avowed criminality would estrange wife and son and friend. However, it has not done so among the people who break open bank vaults.

Apparently, also, it has not done so among those who enrich themselves out of the money paid by poor men into insurance companies.

A Spirit Victory-Togo

By James Montague

Admiral Togo reported to the Mikado: "That we gained a success beyond our expectations is due to the brilliant virtues of Your Majesty and the protection of the spirits of your imperial ancestors, and not to the action of any human being."—News Item.

PRAY don't thank me, Your Majesty, for I would surely be,
With all my honored warships, 'neath the honorable sea,
Had I not been uplifted in the rolling roar of strife
By Your Majesty's most proper and quite blameless private life,
And by the Great Departed who with honored thoughtfulness
Attended this occasion and assured its great success.

Not the pounding and rebounding
Of the shouting shot and shell
Sank the honorable Russians
To a final fare-you-well;
Not the smashing and the crashing
Of the dark torpedo boats,
But the rapping and the tapping
Of your granddads' honored ghosts.

'Tis true we trained our rifles on the enemy with care,
And sent some tons of metal through the powder-blackened air;
'Tis true we lammed them freely with the means at our command,
But the hurtling shell was guided by a helpful hidden hand;
And the kindly, friendly interest that your dead ancestors had
In our honorable purpose put the Russians to the bad.

Not the whizzing and the sizzing
Of the shrieking melinite
Made the remnant of their navy
Quite a mortifying sight.
Not the banging and the clanging
Of our ordnance quelled their boasts,
'Twas the rapping and the tapping
Of your honored granddads' ghosts.

And your most resplendent virtues—ah! they helped to do the biz!
Because you looked not on the wine nor quaffed the creamy fizz.
The vodka-drinking enemy was crushed, and every flip
Or punch or cocktail you refused sent down a Russian ship.
These virtues, O Mikado! drove the Russians from our coasts;
These virtues—and the rapping of your honored granddads' ghosts.

Full wise is he that can himself know.

Is the Dress Suit Doomed?

By Caroline

THE stronger sex have much with which to contend. The present style of evening dress, with its black sameness, is a thorn in the side of many a man.

It is only the bravest among the dudes who dares to vary the monotony of his dress suit with a gray waistcoat or pleated shirt.

Many wish the good old days of powdered hair and satin knee breeches would return. Then it was easy to distinguish the gentleman from the serving man. Now all this is changed, and the lord and master is compelled to wear the same style of clothes as his butler, or worse, the same as a waiter in a hotel or restaurant.

What a terrible vision this presents! What endless possibilities for stupid mistakes! At any time a waiter in a hotel might be mistaken for a guest, or worse, a guest might be taken for a mere waiter.

Any man is liable to have the same insult offered to him that Sherman Bell of Denver suffered at the Chamber of Commerce banquet given in Roosevelt's honor.

The story is that Bell has quit wearing his dress suit because he was mistaken for a waiter at the banquet above mentioned. Bell arrived late, and was on his way to his seat at the table when he was hailed by another guest and ordered to bring more butter.

Could anything be more trying than that?

What can be done about it? Won't some one suggest a way out of this difficulty for these poor suffering "gentlemen"?

Something should be done to prevent such hideous mistakes, especially when clothes make the man.

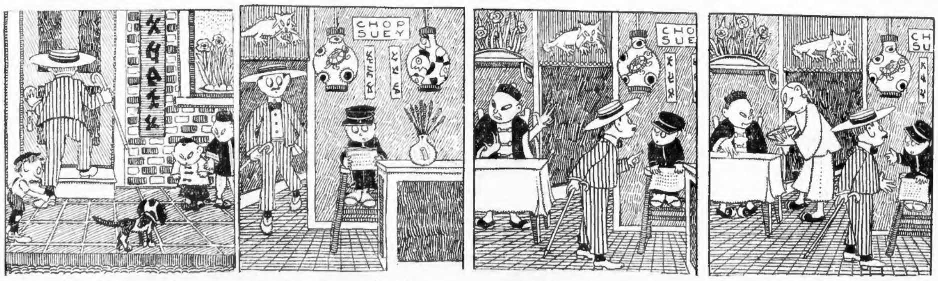
Some device should be made so that such insults might be eliminated.

A large brass button might be worn, engraved with the words, "I am a gentleman," or "Don't ask me for food; I'm not paid to come to this party."

But then a badge large enough to be of service would look like a policeman's badge, so that won't do.

NOW WHAT D'YE THINK OF THAT?

Copyright, 1905, by American-Journal-Examiner



I went into a restaurant
Of Oriental type;

I thought I'd eat a quiet meal
And smoke a quiet pipe.

"Go tell the boss at once," I cried,
"To bring me food and drink."

"He's busy now," the boy replied;
"He's filling up a Chink."
